Penguin Atlas Of Food Who Eats What Where And Why:

The Penguin Atlas of Food Erik Millstone, Tim Lang, 2003 Much of the grain that could amply feed the world's six billion inhabitants is siphoned off to feed livestock and satisfy the meat eating demands of the wealthiest parts of the world. New technologies promise to increase production but their safety remains to be proven. The Penguin Atlas of Food addresses these and other issues in an accessible, inviting format showing how the food chain is affected by historical events, political economy, natural disasters and changing lifestyles. It charts the impact these changes have on different socioeconomic groups and weighs future projections against past trends. With ninety-six pages of maps and graphics, this easy-to-use resource is an essential guide to understanding the role of food in modern life. Coberta

Geographical Indications for Food Products Marsha A. Echols, 2016-09-15 Since the first edition of this indispensable volume nearly a decade ago, great changes have taken place in the national and international legal and regulatory frameworks for geographical indications (GIs) systems for food products. Rather than a limitation designed to prevent the use of culture for protectionist purposes, the preponderance now favours recognition of GIs with enforcement directed at protection. While the World Trade Organization (WTO) and its Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) remain the multilateral legal benchmarks for GIs, the field has been assertively entered by the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) with the 2015 Geneva Act, which adds GIs to the Lisbon Agreement. National laws in key jurisdictions and bilateral and proposed mega-regional trade agreements with provisions on food are vastly more detailed than the relevant TRIPS articles. Still notable for its thorough exploration of the meaning of the TRIPS commitments, the second edition brings to its commentary and guidance a new perspective that takes the changed conditions fully into account. With no sacrifice of depth, the author covers a wide range of issues such as the following: estimates of the value added by origin and tradition; GIs as a tool for national and local development; growing importance of the concepts heirloom heritage and local minimum standards of protection under TRIPS; administration and policing of product characteristics; procedures followed by the European Union, India, Japan and others; applicable laws concerning labelling and unfair business practices; traditional communal nature of GIs versus private property characterization; significance of the WTO's Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade; administrative and procedural rules at WTO, regional and national levels; the role of the Codex Alimentarius and the role of the TRIPS Council. Given that experience and research have revealed the great financial and cultural value of GIs, this thoroughly updated, detailed analysis and interpretation of current trends in food product regulation worldwide is of crucial importance to an adequate understanding of the trade rules that apply to the recognition, protection and enforcement of GIs and competing names. It is sure to be of great value to those concerned with this specialized field, whether practitioners, food producers and traders, jurists, officials, policymakers or academics.

The Oxford Companion to Food Alan Davidson, 2014 Twenty years in the making, the first edition of this bestselling reference work appeared in 1999 to worldwide acclaim. Combining serious and meticulously researched facts with entertaining and witty commentary it has been deemed unique by chefs and reviewers around the globe It contains both a comprehensive catalog of foodstuffs crackers and cookies named for battles and divas body parts from toe to cerebellum breads from Asia to the Mediterranean and a richly allusive account of the culture of food whether expressed in literature and cook books or as dishes special to a country or community Retaining Alan Davidson s wisdom and wit this new edition also covers the latest developments across the whole spectrum of this subject Tom Jaine has taken the opportunity to update the text and alert readers to new perspectives in food studies There is new coverage on attitudes towards food consumption production and perception such as food and genetics food and sociology and obesity New entries include terms such as convenience foods gastronomy fusion food leftovers obesity local food and many more There are also new entries on important personalities who are of special significance within the world of food among them Clarence Birdseye Henri Nestle and Louis Pasteur Now in its third edition the Companion maintains its place as the foremost food reference resource for study and home use

State of the World, 2004 Brian Halweil, Worldwatch Institute, Erik Assadourian, 2004 The Worldwatch Institute s award winning research team focuses on consumption pointing to the many ways in which consumption habits drive ecological and social deterioration as well as how these habits can be redirected to reinforce environmental and social goals

French Beans and Food Scares Susanne Freidberg, 2004-10-21 From mad cows to McDonaldization to genetically modified maize European food scares and controversies at the turn of the millennium provoked anxieties about the perils hidden in an increasingly industrialized internationalized food supply These food fears have cast a shadow as long as Africa where farmers struggle to meet European demand for the certifiably clean green bean But the trade in fresh foods between Africa and Europe is hardly uniform Britain and France still do business mostly with their former colonies in ways that differ as dramatically as their national cuisines The British buy their baby veg from industrial scale farms pre packaged and pre trimmed the French meanwhile prefer their green beans naked and produced by peasants Managers and technologists coordinate the baby veg trade between Anglophone Africa and Britain whereas an assortment of commercants and self styled agro entrepreneurs run the French bean trade Globalization then has not erased cultural difference in the world of food and trade but instead has stretched it to a transnational scale French Beans and Food Scares explores the cultural economies of two non traditional commodity trades between Africa and Europe one anglophone the other francophone in order to show not only why they differ but also how both have felt the fall out of the wealthy world s food scares In a voyage that begins in the mid 19th century and ends in the early 21st passing by way of Paris London Burkina Faso and Zambia French Beans and Food Scares illuminates the daily work of exporters importers and other invisible intermediaries in the global fresh food economy These intermediaries accounts provide a unique perspective on the practical and ethical challenges of globalized food trading in an anxious age They also show how postcolonial ties shape not only different societies geographies of food supply but also their very ideas about what makes food good

Food Words Peter Jackson, 2013-06-27 Food Words is a series of provocative essays on some of the most important keywords in the emergent field of food studies focusing on current controversies and on going debates Words like choice and convenience are often used as explanatory terms in understanding consumer behavior but are clearly ideological in the way they reflect particular positions and serve specific interests while words like taste and value are no less complex and contested Inspired by Raymond Williams Food Words traces the multiple meanings of each of our keywords tracking nuances in different academic commercial and policy contexts Mapping the dynamic meanings of each term the book moves forward from critical assessment to active intervention an attitude that is reflected in the lively sometimes combative style of the essays Each essay is research based and fully referenced but accessible to the general reader With a foreword by eminent food scholar Warren Belasco Professor of American Studies at the University of Maryland Baltimore County and written by an inter disciplinary team associated with the CONANX research project Consumer culture in an age of anxiety Food Words will be essential reading for food scholars across the arts humanities and social sciences La Situación Del Mundo 2004 ,2004-03-29 Analiza c mo consumimos por qu consumimos y cu l es el impacto de nuestras opciones de consumo sobre el planeta y el resto de los seres humanos

Sustainable Culinary Systems C. Michael Hall,Gossling Stefan,2013-01-04 There is increasing public and academic interest in local and sustainable foods and food tourism These interests have been reflected in such diverse elements as the growth of farmers markets green restaurants food miles carbon and sustainability labelling concerns over food supply and security Slow Food Fair Trade and a desire to buy and eat locally Food related hospitality and tourism is integral to this process because of the way in which it simultaneously acts to globalise and localise food consumption and create new foodways and commodity chains This book therefore aims to provide an integrated understanding of the contemporary interest in food and food tourism through the use of an international collection of illustrative case study chapters as well as the provision of a novel integrative framework for the book a sustainable culinary system This is the first volume to examine the concept of sustainable culinary systems particularly with specific reference to tourism and hospitality Divided into two parts firstly the notion of the local is explored reflecting the increased interest in the championing of local food production and consumption Secondly treatment of sustainability in food and food tourism and hospitality in settings that reach beyond the local in a business and socio economic sense is reviewed The book therefore reflects much of the contemporary public interest in the conscious or ethical consumption and production food as well as revealing the inherent tensions between local and broader goals in both defining and achieving sustainable culinary systems and the environmental social and economic implications of food production and consumption This book provides the reader with an integrated approach to understanding the subject of how culinary systems may be made more sustainable and will be valuable reading to all those interested in sustainable food and food tourism Food and Culture in Contemporary American Fiction Lorna

Piatti-Farnell,2011-07-13 Establishing an interdisciplinary connection between Food Studies and American literary scholarship Piatti Farnell investigates the significances of food and eating in American fiction from 1980 to the present day She argues that culturally coded representations of the culinary illuminate contemporary American anxieties about class gender race tradition immigration nationhood and history As she offers a critical analysis of major works of contemporary fiction Piatti Farnell unveils contrasting modes of culinary nostalgia disillusionment and progress that pervasively address the cultural disintegration of local and familiar culinary values in favor of globalized economies of consumption In identifying different incarnations of the American culinary Piatti Farnell covers the depiction of food in specific categories of American fiction and explores how the cultural separation that molds food preferences inevitably challenges the existence of a homogenous American identity The study treads on new grounds since it not only provides the first comprehensive study of food and consumption in contemporary American fiction but also aims to expose interrelated politics of consumption in a variety of authors from different ethnic cultural racial and social backgrounds within the United States
