President's Commission on Coal, 1980 At the conclusion of the 110 day coal miners strike in March of 1978 President Carter appointed John D Jay Rockefeller IV to head up the first major federal study of coal mining in America in three decades One of the main tasks of the President's Commission on Coal PCC was in the words of Ben Franklin who covers coal for the New York Times to search out the roots of labor management bitterness that not only prolonged the record walkout but for decades has resulted in strikes every three years To President Carter who expressed a desire to place greater emphasis on domestically produced coal as an energy source and to business interests there were questions of great importance review essay by Alan Banks Appalachian Journal SUMMER 1982 Vol 9 No 4 SUMMER 1982 pp 295 301 Republic of Detours Scott Borchert, 2025-09-23 A New York Times Book Review Editors Choice Winner of the New Deal Book Award An immersive account of the New Deal project that created state by state guidebooks to America in the midst of the Great Depression and employed some of the biggest names in American letters. The plan was as idealistic as it was audacious and utterly unprecedented. Take thousands of hard-up writers and put them to work charting a country on the brink of social and economic collapse with the aim of producing a series of guidebooks to the then forty-eight states along with hundreds of other publications dedicated to cities, regions, and towns while also gathering reams of folklore, narratives of formerly enslaved people, and even recipes, all of varying quality, each revealing distinct sensibilities. All this was the singular purview of the Federal Writers Project, a division of the Works Progress Administration founded in 1935 to employ jobless writers from once bestselling novelists and acclaimed poets to the more dubiously qualified. The FWP took up the lofty goal of rediscovering America in words and soon found itself embroiled in the day's most heated arguments regarding radical politics, racial inclusion, and the purpose of writing, forcing it to reckon with the promises and failures of both the New Deal and the American experiment itself. Scott Borchert's Republic of Detours tells the story of this raucous and remarkable undertaking by delving into the experiences of key figures and tracing the FWP from its optimistic early days to its dismemberment by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. We observe notable writers at their day jobs, including Nelson Algren, broke and smarting from the failure of his first novel; Zora Neale Hurston, the most widely published Black woman in the country; and Richard Wright, who arrived in the FWP's chaotic New York City office on an upward career trajectory courtesy of the WPA. Meanwhile, Ralph Ellison, Studs Terkel, John Cheever, and other future literary stars found encouragement and security on the FWP payroll. By way of these and other stories, Borchert illuminates an essentially noble enterprise that sought to create a broad and inclusive self-portrait of America at a time when the nation's very identity and future were thrown into question. As the United States enters a new era of economic distress, political strife, and culture industry turmoil, this book's lessons are urgent and strong.

The WPA History of the Negro in Pittsburgh Laurence Glasco, 2012-07-19. The monumental American Guide Series published by the Federal Writers Project provided work to thousands of unemployed writers, editors, and researchers in the midst of the Great Depression. Funded by the Works Progress Administration and featuring books on states, cities, rivers, and ethnic groups, it also opened an unprecedented view into the lives of the American people during this time. Untold numbers of projects in progress were lost when the program was abruptly shut down by a hostile Congress in 1939. One of those, The Negro in Pittsburgh, lay dormant in the Pennsylvania State Library until it was microfilmed in 1970. The WPA History of the Negro in Pittsburgh marked the first publication of this rich body of information. This unique historical study of the city's Black population, although never completed, features articles on civil rights, social class, lifestyle, culture, folklore, and institutions from colonial times through the 1930s. Editor Laurence A. Glasco's introduction and robust bibliography contextualizes the articles and offers a history on the manuscript itself, guiding contemporary readers through this remarkable work.

The Middle Atlantic League, 1925-1952 William E. Akin, 2015-08-17. The small and midsized cities of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia reached their peaks of population and prosperity in the second quarter of the 20th century The baseball teams from these towns formed the Middle Atlantic League the strongest circuit in the low minors and the one with the most alumni to advance to the majors This thorough history chronicles the MAL through three distinct phases from its 1925 inaugural season to its dissolution in 1952 During the first several seasons most clubs hung one step from financial disaster despite support from local communities Then the league flourished during the Great Depression as president Elmer Daily magically found investors and night baseball boosted working class attendance Now enjoying a modicum of financial stability and an infusion of young talent the clubs became talent farms for major league teams Both the league and its cities went into decline as the country underwent seismic cultural and economic shifts following World War II
