Pennsylvania Trees (Classic Reprint) J. S. Illick,2017-09-13 Excerpt from Pennsylvania Trees Trees are among the commonest and most conspicuous objects of nature The numerous products derived from them are very use ful often indispensable In all ages trees and grasses have been the most important products of the soil A dense and valuable tree growth covered originally almost the entire area of Pennsylvania About 278 species of trees and shrubs are native to this State of which number 125 are trees The number of native representatives in the present forests is the same as in the original forest While the number of representatives remains the same yet one finds a marked difference in the degree of their abundance and in their age size form density quality value and productivity The original forest of the State was large dense and extremely productive The present Forests are small Open and very unproductive Each generation of mankind has seen a smaller more open and less productive generation of forests It is not a prophecy but the statement of a fact when we say that the source of our timber supply is becoming an acute and vital question Fast vanishing forests and ever rising lumber prices are couriers of this fact The Federal and some State Governments have already inaugurated policies to offset the present destructive tendency in our forests by starting constructive work To date no state has made a greater advance in forestry than Pennsylvania She has however just started on this useful mission The men who are directing her forest Policies are endeavoring to lay a substantial foundation upon which a stable superstructure may be reared In order to accomplish this it is necessary to have the cooperation of the citizens of the State especially the woodland owners and managers Forestry needs the support of public sentiment No substantial and permanent advance is insured until our citizens understand the fundamentals of forestry and can distinguish the important timber trees from the inferior weed trees It is hoped that the sphere of usefulness of this bulletin will not be limited to woodland owners and managers but will extend to lay men students and botanists About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
