Francis P. Harper (Firm),1903 Prints of a New Kind Allison M. Stagg,2023-03-20 Prints of a New Kind details the political strategies and scandals that inspired the first generation of American caricaturists to share news and opinions with their audiences in shockingly radical ways Complementing studies on British and European printmaking this book is a survey and catalogue of all known American political caricatures created in the country s transformative early years as the nation sought to define itself in relation to European models of governance and artistry Allison Stagg examines printed caricatures that mocked events reported in newspapers and politicians in the United States fledgling government reactions captured in the personal papers of the politicians being satirized and the lives of the artists who satirized them Stagg s work fills a large gap in early American scholarship one that has escaped thorough art historical attention because of the rarity of extant images and the lack of understanding of how these images fit into their political context Featuring 125 images many published here for the first time since their original appearance and a comprehensive appendix that includes a checklist of caricature prints with dates titles artists references and other essential information Prints of a New Kind will be welcomed by scholars and students of early American history and art history as well as visual material and print culture The Middle-Class City

John Henry Hepp, IV,2018-06-29 The classic historical interpretation of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries in America sees this period as a political search for order by the middle class culminating in Progressive Era reforms In The Middle Class City John Hepp examines transformations in everyday middle class life in Philadelphia between 1876 and 1926 to discover the cultural roots of this search for order By looking at complex relationships among members of that city s middle class and three largely bourgeois commercial institutions newspapers department stores and railroads Hepp finds that the men and women of the middle class consistently reordered their world along rational lines According to Hepp this period was rife with evidence of creative reorganization that served to mold middle class life The department store was more than just an expanded dry goods emporium it was a middle class haven of order in the heart of a frenetic city an entirely new way of organizing merchandise for sale Redesigned newspapers brought well ordered news and entertainment to middle class homes and also carried retail advertisements to entice consumers downtown via train and streetcar The complex interiors of urban railroad stations reflected a rationalization of space and rail schedules embodied the modernized specialization of standard time In his fascinating investigation of similar patterns of behavior among commercial institutions Hepp exposes an important intersection between the histories of the city and the middle class In his careful reconstruction of this now vanished culture Hepp examines a wide variety of sources including diaries and memoirs left by middle class women and men of the region Following Philadelphians as they rode trains and trolleys read newspapers and shopped at department stores he uses their accounts as individualized guidebooks to middle class life in the metropolis And through a creative use of photographs floor plans maps and material culture The Middle Class City helps to reconstruct the physical settings of these enterprises and recreate everyday middle class life shedding new light on an underanalyzed historical group and the cultural history of twentieth century America
