Diasporas and Ethnic Identities in Africa Uyilawa Usuanlele, 2024-05-06 Despite the enormous work on diasporas relating to Africa the majority of this work focuses on trade diasporas located in West African groups only mentioning the pre colonial period in passing Therefore there is a need to redirect research on diasporas from within Africa to include non economic diasporas during this time period Diasporas and Ethnic Identity in Africa The Edo ne Ekue among the Northeast Yoruba 1485 1995 fills a gap by discussing the existence of diasporas in pre colonial Africa that have been neglected by African scholars Using the Edo ne Ekue as a case study Uyilawa Usuanlele examines Edo people by shedding light on their political institutions trading networks and associations as autonomous and distinct within the Benin Kingdom This book also discusses how the Edo ne Ekue simultaneously linked their institutions with the royal court of the Benin Kingdom at the expense of the local rulers of their host communities Throughout this study Usuanlele provides a better understanding of ethnic identity state by state relations and their members outside their territorial boundaries to discover the dynamics of political economic and social changes within and between communities during and after pre colonial times

The Postcolonial African State in Transition Amy Niang, 2018-11-02 The Postcolonial African State in Transition offers a new perspective on a set of fundamental albeit old questions with salient contemporary resonance what is the nature of the postcolonial state How did it come about And more crucially the book poses an often neglected question what was the postcolonial African state internally built against Through a detailed historical investigation of the Voltaic region the book theorizes the state in transition as the constitutive condition of the African state rendering centralization processes as always transient uncertain even dangerous endeavours In Africa and elsewhere in the colonial and postcolonial world the centralized sovereign state has become something of a meta model that bears the imprint of necessity and determinism This book argues that there is nothing natural linear conventional or intrinsically consensual about the centralized state form In fact the African state emerged and was erected against and at the expense of a variety of authority structures and forms of self governance The state has sustained itself through destructive practices internal colonization and in fact the production and alienation of a range of internal others Migrants and Strangers in an African City Bruce Whitehouse,2012-03-14 In cities throughout Africa local inhabitants live alongside large populations of strangers Bruce Whitehouse explores the condition of strangerhood for residents who have come from the West African Sahel to settle in Brazzaville Congo Whitehouse considers how these migrants live simultaneously inside and outside of Congolese society as merchants as Muslims in a predominantly non Muslim society and as parents seeking to instill in their children the customs of their communities of origin Migrants and Strangers in an African City challenges Pan Africanist ideas of transnationalism and diaspora in today s globalized world

Nathan,2019-02-28 Two aspects of contemporary urban life in Africa are often described as sources of political change the emergence of a large urban middle class and high levels of ethnic diversity and inter ethnic social contact Many expected that these factors would help spark a transition away from ethnic competition and clientelism toward more programmatic elections Focusing on urban Ghana this book shows that the growing middle class and high levels of ethnic diversity are not having the anticipated political effects Instead urban Ghana is stuck in a trap clientelism and ethnic voting persist in many urban neighborhoods despite changes to the socio economic characteristics and policy preferences of voters Through a unique examination of intra urban variation in patterns of electoral competition Nathan explains why this trap exists demonstrates its effects on political behavior and explores how new democracies like Ghana can move past it      Burkina Faso Pierre Englebert,2018-02-19 Poor even by the standards of West Africa and landlocked at the edge of the Sahel Burkina Faso the Land of Men of Dignity has been plagued by political instability since independence from France in 1960 The country has suffered five military coups the last of which cost the life of the outspoken and charismatic leader Thomas Sankara who had waged war on poverty corruption and illiteracy Yet Burkina's growth was surprisingly strong during the 1980s as it made the best of its meager assets in cotton gold and livestock The country is also fortunate in its relative lack of ethnic conflict and the several religions practiced Islam Christianity and animism peacefully coexist Burkina has earned mixed reviews on the international stage however fighting two wars with Mali and supporting Taylor's rebels in the Liberian civil war In this textured introduction to Burkina Faso Pierre Englebert highlights the historical and contemporary factors that account for the country's instability considers the ethnic religious and

A. O. Van Nieuwenhuijze,2013-10-22 Development Begins at Home Problems and Prospects of the Sociology of Development examines the challenges posed by development to the field of sociology The book first reviews colonialism and the emergent One World in terms of the history of ideas discusses attitudes towards development and examines the definitions of development These are followed by separate chapters on the contributions of sociology to development studies The considerable wealth of sociology in dealing with change and to a lesser extent with development is identified. Subsequent chapters examine points of departure for current and prospective work in the sociology of development. One is the profile of underdevelopment sociologically understood along with the matching configuration of development goals. Another is the true meaning of social development as opposed to economic development. The main finding is that development may well cause the general outlook of sociology to change. The prospect is for a sociology of human dignity in the social nexus.

Forging African Communities Oliver Bakewell, Loren B. Landau, 2017-11-22. This book draws renewed attention to migration into and within Africa and to the socio-political consequences of these movements. In doing so it complements vibrant scholarly and political discussions of migrant integration globally with innovative interdisciplinary perspectives focused on migration within Africa. It sheds new light on how human mobility redefines the meaning of home, community, citizenship and belonging. The authors ask how people's movements within the continent are forging novel forms of membership while catalysing social change within the communities and countries to which they move and which they have left behind. Original case studies from across Africa question the concepts, actors and social trajectories dominant in the contemporary literature. Moreover, it speaks to and challenges sociological debates over the nature of migrant integration, debates largely shaped by research in the world's wealthy regions. The text, in part or as a whole, will appeal to students and scholars of migration, development, urban and rural transformation, African studies and displacement.

Costs and Benefits of Rent Control Stephen Malpezzi, A. Graham Tipple, Kenneth George Willis, 1990. Over the past forty years, rent control has been a feature of housing in Ghana. This study focuses on the housing market in Kumasi, the second largest city in Ghana. The authors examine the characteristics of rent control in force there and assess the costs and benefits of rent control on landlords and tenants alike. These controls have been successful in ensuring that housing is very inexpensive for most households in both absolute terms and in proportion of income devoted to rent. Because of these controls, landlords have been deprived of economic returns from their property. Therefore, they have tended to withdraw stock from renting to use for their own family members and to reduce maintenance. Rent control is not the only constraint on the housing market in Kumasi or in Ghana. This study also describes other supply-side and regulatory constraints, including those affecting land finance and choice of building design and materials. A number of options for relaxation/decontrol are studied with the aid of a simple present value model. Along with decontrol of new construction, it is recommended that floating up and out of controls over a period of about 5 years should be considered along with policy changes to ensure ready supplies of land finance and building materials. Finally, building a political consensus behind decontrol is not independent of but is more important than the technical means chosen for decontrol or relaxation.
