Mathematics of Information and Coding Te Sun Han, Kingo Kobayashi, 2002 This book is intended to provide engineering and or statistics students communications engineers and mathematicians with the firm theoretic basis of source coding or data compression in information theory Although information theory consists of two main areas source coding and channel coding the authors choose here to focus only on source coding The reason is that in a sense it is more basic than channel coding and also because of recent achievements in source coding and compression An important feature of the book is that whenever possible the authors describe universal coding methods i e the methods that can be used without prior knowledge of the statistical properties of the data The authors approach the subject of source coding from the very basics to the top frontiers in an intuitively transparent but mathematically sound manner The book serves as a theoretical reference for communication professionals and statisticians specializing in information theory It will also serve as an excellent introductory text for advanced level and graduate students taking elementary or advanced courses in telecommunications electrical engineering statistics mathematics and computer science
