

Cytotoxin K

- single-component protein toxins that are members of the family of  $\beta$ -barrel poreforming toxin
- This toxin family includes  $\beta$ -toxin of Clostridium perfringens and  $\alpha$ -haemolysin of S. aureus
- CytK is a 34-kDa protein with dermonecrotic, cytotoxic and haemolytic activities, and shows similar cytotoxic potency towards cell cultures as Hbl and Nhe (Lund et al., 2000)

Pore-Forming Toxins Gisou van der Goot, 2012-12-06 Pore forming toxins are virulence factors produced by a great variety of pathogenic bacteria ranging from the Gram positive Staphylococcus aureus to the Gram negative Helicobacter pylori The recent studies reviewed in this volume describe the progress that has been made in dissecting the different steps of the mode of action of these proteins which generally include binding to specific cell surface receptors oligomerization into ring like structures and membrane perforation Pore-Forming Toxins Gisou van der Goot, 2014-09-01

Pore-forming Peptides and Protein Toxins Gianfranco Menestrina, M. Dalla Sera, 2003-01-30 Pore forming proteins and peptides play a central role in bacterial pathogenesis the immune response venomous attack and innate immunity Pore forming Peptides and Protein Toxins describes how natural and synthetic peptides and toxins form pores and ionic channels that cause cell membrane collapse and cell death Written by researchers from around the world it discusses such topics as the channel forming properties of Helicobacter pylori and the role of amyloid peptide channels in the development of amyloid diseases This text provides a multidisciplinary approach to understanding the basic principles and cellular mechanisms of the actions of toxins and their potential use as research tools Structural and Biochemical Characterization of the YaxAB

Pore-forming Toxin from Yersinia Enterocolitica Bastian Bräuning, 2019-09-26 This book discusses the decoding of the lytic mechanism of an helical pore forming toxin YaxAB composed of two different subunits Pore forming toxins PFTs are among the most common bacterial toxins They are produced by a variety of pathogens which infect a wide range of organisms including plants insects and humans Yet the maturation of these particles and the structural changes required for pore formation are still poorly understood for many PFT families Using a diverse panel of biochemical and structural techniques including X ray crystallography and cryo electron microscopy Dr Br uning and colleagues have succeeded in identifying the mechanistic contributions of the two toxin components and elucidating the lytic state of the pore complex The results of this thesis on the YaxAB system are applicable to orthologues from agriculturally relevant insect pathogens and offer valuable structural and mechanistic insights to inform future bioengineering efforts Proteins Gregor

Anderluh,Jeremy H. Lakey,2011-01-11 Formation of transmembrane pores is a very effective way of killing cells It is thus not surprising that many bacterial and eukaryotic toxic agents are pore forming proteins Pore formation in a target membrane is a complex process composed of several steps proteins need to attach to the lipid membrane possibly aggregate in the plane of the membrane and finally form a pore by inserting part of the polypeptide chain across the lipid bilayer Structural information about toxins at each stage is indispensable for the biochemical and molecular biological studies that aim to understand how pores are formed at the molecular level There are currently only two Staphylococcus aureus and hemolysin E from Escherichia coli Therefore what we know about these proteins was obtained over many years of intense experimentation We have nevertheless in the last couple of years witnessed a significant rise in structural information on the soluble forms of pore forming proteins Surprisingly many unexpected similarities with other proteins were noted despite extremely low or insignificant sequence similarity It appears that lipid membrane binding and formation of transmembrane channels is achieved in many cases by a limited repertoire of structures This book describes how several of the important pore forming toxin families achieve membrane binding and which structural elements are used for formation of transmembrane pores Our contributors have thus provided the means for a comparative analysis of several unrelated families

Bacterial Protein Toxins K. Aktories,I. Just,2000-04-26 With contributions by numerous experts The Comprehensive Sourcebook of Bacterial Protein Toxins Joseph E. Alouf,Daniel Ladant,Michel R. Popoff,2005-12-20 This book describes the major achievements and discoveries relevant to bacterial protein toxins since the turn of the new century illustrated by the discovery of more than fifty novel toxins many of them identified through genome screening The establishment of the three dimensional crystal structure of more than 20 toxins during the same period offers deeper knowledge of structure activity relationships and provides a framework to understand how toxins recognize receptors penetrate membranes and interact with and modify intracellular substrates Edited by two of the most highly regarded experts in the field from the Institut Pasteur France 14 brand new chapters dedicated to coverage of historical and general aspects of toxinology Includes the major toxins of both basic and clinical interest are described in depth Details applied aspects of toxins such as therapy vaccinology and toolkits in cell biology Evolutionary and functional aspects of bacterial toxins evaluated and summarized Toxin applications in cell biology presented Therapy cancer therapy dystonias discussed Vaccines native and genetically engineered vaccines featured Toxins discussed as biological weapons comprising chapters on anthrax diphtheria ricin etc

Molecular Paradigms of Infectious Disease Cheryl A. Nickerson,Michael Schurr,2006-11-28 Infectious diseases caused by bacterial pathogens are a leading cause of human illness and death worldwide The study of bacterial pathogenesis has changed dramatically over the last decade as a result of revolutionary changes in biotechnology and our understanding of molecular and cellular biological systems This volume is structured to emphasize paradigms of infectious disease that have emerged over the last 10 years and provides a fundamental understanding of the complex cellular and molecular processes that are important for bacterial virulence and the infectious disease process The book highlights key techniques and methodologies that have driven recent discoveries in bacterial pathogenesis major structures and mechanisms in bacteria that are important for their pathogenesis the regulation of these virulence determinants by global regulators and bacterial biowarfare agents     Cellular Responses to Bacterial Pore-forming Toxins Rodrigo Manuel Gonzalez, Françoise Gisou van der Goot Grunberg (Biotechnologin), 2011
