Writing Technology Christina Haas, 2013-11-05 Academic and practitioner journals in fields from electronics to business to language studies as well as the popular press have for over a decade been proclaiming the arrival of the computer revolution and making far reaching claims about the impact of computers on modern western culture Implicit in many arguments about the revolutionary power of computers is the assumption that communication language and words are intimately tied to culture that the computer s transformation of communication means a transformation a revolutionizing of culture Moving from a vague sense that writing is profoundly different with different material and technological tools to an understanding of how such tools can and will change writing writers written forms and writing s functions is not a simple matter Further the question of whether and how changes in individual writers experiences with new technologies translate into large scale cultural revolutions remains unresolved This book is about the relationship of writing to its technologies It uses history theory and empirical research to argue that the effects of computer technologies on literacy are complex always incomplete and far from unitary despite a great deal of popular and even scholarly discourse about the inevitability of the computer revolution The author argues that just as computers impact on discourse discourse itself impacts technology and explains how technology is used in educational settings and beyond Writing Signs Irene A. Bierman,1998-12-16 Bierman considers how the Fatimid rulers used public writing to present their own ideology to different members of society in Cairo in the 10th to 12th centuries and the ways in which it was received United States Reports, Supreme Court United States. Supreme Court,1903 Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer,2023-08-07 In Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer makes the argument that writing instructors should shift the construct so that peer response and student self assessment are more central than teacher response Presenting the results of a national study of teacher and peer response and student self assessment at institutions of higher education across the United States Melzer analyzes teacher and peer response to over 1 000 pieces of student writing as well as 128 student portfolio reflection essays He draws on his analysis and on a comprehensive review of the literature on response to introduce a constructivist heuristic for response aimed at both composition instructors and instructors across disciplines Melzer argues that teachers and researchers should focus less on teacher response to individual pieces of student writing and more on engaging in dialogue with student self assessment and peer response focusing on growth and transfer rather than products and grades Reconstructing Response to Student Writing especially when taken together with Melzer's previous book Assignments across the Curriculum provides a comprehensive and large scale view of college writing and responding across the curriculum in the United States Getting Started in Options Michael C.
