A. van der Voort, 2013-09-03 Technische und konomische Entwicklungen im Medienbereich setzen sich ber nationale Grenzen hinweg durch gelegentlich gilt dies auch f r Medieninhalte und formate Die europ ische Medienforschung im allgemeinen und damit auch die Medienpsychologie entwickelt sich bis heute jedoch zumeist noch im nationalen Rahmen Erste Schritte zur berwindung

dieser unbefriedigenden Lage werden seit einigen Jahren von namhaften Medienpsychologen aus zahlreichen Ländern unternommen. Die in diesem Band versammelten Beiträge vermitteln dem Leser ein repräsentatives Bild von vielversprechenden Kooperationsmöglichkeiten wie auch von bereits bestehenden Kooperationsabsichten und gewähren ihm zugleich einen Einblick in den interessanten, wenngleich langwierigen Prozeß der europäischen Integration im Bereich der Medienforschung. Technical and economical developments in the media spread increasingly beyond national borders. Occasionally this also applies to the contents and formats of media. Yet research in general and also in the field of media psychology is done on an entirely national scale. Results, methods and theories of research in Europe are very often acknowledged only when they are published in American journals. In the present volume well known media psychologists from several European countries discuss new perspectives and schemes for cooperation on subjects such as content analysis, parasocial interaction with TV characters, television and language and the impact of TV broadcasts on the audience, thus preparing the ground for further integration in the research of media in Europe.

Television Versus the Internet Barrie Gunter, 2010-09-01. This book will explore the questions raised by the technological developments that have encouraged the multiplication of TV channels. TV is moving through a period of rapid change. Governments around the world are switching from analogue to digital forms of transmission to further expand the amount of content that TV signals can carry. At the same time competition for eyeballs has also grown from outside that traditional marketplace with the emergence of the Internet. The roll out of broadband and increased bandwidth has had the greatest impact on television because online technology can readily convey the same content. All these changes have created a great deal more competition for viewers within the traditional TV marketplace. The Internet has proven to be especially popular with young people who have adopted its applications to a far greater extent than their elders, though even the latter have now begun to take up online activities in significant numbers. Are these audiences the same? Do people make a choice between these two media or do they use them both at different times and for different reasons? Can television utilise the Internet in profitable ways to enhance its market position? Will television have to evolve from its current state to provide the kinds of content reception services to which people have become accustomed in the online world? If it does need to change to survive, will this nevertheless mean a radical new configuration of content and the disappearance of channels with fixed, pre-determined programme schedules? Examines the implications of new interactive communications technologies for the way people will use television in the future. Presents an analysis of changing styles of television viewing and changing orientations towards television. Examines the growing importance of the broadband internet as a source of information and entertainment.
