published in 2001 Bringing together geographers planners political scientists economists rural development specialists bankers public administrators and other development experts this volume questions the benefits of Structural Adjustment Programmes SAPs It critically assesses the impact of SAPs from a wider perspective than a purely economic one highlighting concerns about impacts of adjustments on the more vulnerable elements of society such as social welfare the environment labour gender and agriculture Revealing both the costs and benefits of the economic restructuring programme the book also suggests alternatives to current development models and how SAPs can be made more sustainable An original and comprehensive addition to the collections of both students and practitioners of development

Politics of Urban Runoff Andrew Karvonen, 2011-08-19 A study of urban stormwater runoff that explores the relationships among nature technology and society in cities When rain falls on the city it creates urban runoff that cause flooding erosion and water pollution Municipal engineers manage a complex network of technical and natural systems to treat and remove these temporary water flows from cities as quickly as possible Urban runoff is frequently discussed in terms of technical expertise and environmental management but it encompasses a multitude of such nontechnical issues as land use quality of life governance aesthetics and community identity and is central to the larger debates on creating more sustainable and livable cities In this book Andrew Karvonen uses urban runoff as a lens to view the relationships among nature technology and society Offering theoretical insights from urban environmental history human geography landscape and ecological planning and science and technology studies as well as empirical evidence from case studies Karvonen proposes a new relational politics of urban nature After describing the evolution of urban runoff practices Karvonen analyzes the urban runoff activities in Austin and Seattle two cities known for their highly contested public debates over runoff issues and exemplary storm water management practices The Austin case study highlights the tensions among urban development property rights land use planning and citizen activism the Seattle case study explores the city's long standing reputation for being in harmony with nature Drawing on these accounts Karvonen suggests a new relational politics of urban nature that is situated inclusive and action oriented to address the tensions among nature technology and society

Sprawl, Justice, and Citizenship Thad Williamson, 2010-05-12 Must the strip mall and the eight lane highway define 21st century American life That is a central question posed by critics of suburban and exurban living in America Yet despite the ubiquity of the critique it never sticks Americans by the scores of millions have willingly moved into sprawling developments over the past few decades Americans find many of the more substantial criticisms of sprawl easy to ignore because they often come across as snobbish in tone Yet as Thad Williamson explains sprawl does create real measurable social problems Utilizing a landmark 30 000 person survey he shows that sprawl fosters civic disengagement accentuates inequality and negatively impacts the environment Yet while he highlights the deleterious effects of sprawl on civic life in America he is also evenhanded He does not dismiss the pastoral homeownership ideal that is at the root of sprawl and is sympathetic to the vast numbers of Americans who very clearly prefer it

Sprawl Justice and Citizenship is not only be the most comprehensive work in print on the subject it will be the first to offer an empirically rigorous critique of the most popular form of living in America today
