To face the double pressures from the changing environment and increasing demand of the growing population globally maize plays an essential role in securing food safety due to its strong adaptability With climate change the severity of extreme environmental stresses is projected to be more frequent which affects maize growth physiological processes and productivity It is important to explore the physiological mechanisms and regulatory measures in response to abiotic stresses The interactions between crop and environmental stresses are multistep and complex The stress resistance response of maize is still an extremely complicated process Studies on responses of maize growth yield or quality under stress conditions are growing exponentially but the description at a physiological or biochemical level is still unclear In addition new knowledge of maize hybrids with adversity resistance has not been deeply excavated Hence it is necessary to capture current knowledge on the impact of abiotic stress on maize especially the mechanisms and regulation of maize responses under multiple stresses and to provide potential solutions that will ensure a sustainable supply of nutritious food to meet the demand from an increasing population under a changing climate

Integrated nutrients management: An approach for sustainable crop production and food security in changing climates Amanullah, Gabrijel Ondrasek, Abdel Rahman Mohmmad Said Al -Tawaha, 2024-06-20 Soil health and fertility are continuously declining due to the removal of essential plant nutrients from the soils in the current changing climate scenario Due to less soil organic carbon SOC and growing of high yielding varieties and hybrids further increases deficiencies of both macro and micronutrients that had a negative impact on soil health crop productivity food security and growers Integrated nutrients management not only increases crop productivity and growers income but also increases soil fertility health and sustainability in changing climates Integrated nutrients management INM refers to the maintenance of soil fertility and improvement in crop productivity with the application of plant nutrients through the combined application of organic fertilizers animal manures and plant residues chemical fertilizers urea SSP DAP etc and bio fertilizers beneficial microbes
