

*Duck went straight to see Chicken.
"I've got your feather," said Duck. "I'm Thank you!" cried Chicken. "I've been looking for my feather everywhere!"*

Chicken put the feather back in her own tail, where it looked just perfect.

"And how beautiful you look too Duck, with your fine yellow feathers."

Duck waddled out into the farmyard, feeling very pretty indeed!

Count Dorothy Stein,2023-10-02 Originally published in 1995 this book confronts the contentious political issues on all sides of the population debate including immigration demographic competition gender ratios reproductive research and children s rights The book argues that lower fertility rates are preferred by women themselves are beneficial in their own right to both women and children and should not be used as a bargaining chip in any other area of the development debate Drawing on a large body of research in anthropology child psychology and population studies the book presents evidence that the poor do not necessarily have large families as form of financial security or to put them to work people without offspring are less lonely in old age immigration and refugee controls in the Northern Hemisphere have been more driven by politics than rational calculation and human rights social security does not require a large cohort of young workers This book is a challenging contribution to the development debate It presents a persuasive case for policies which recognise hopeful trends in relieving the environmental and social pressures of a globally increasing population New York Magazine ,1992-08-10
 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine s consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea Teen
