The Continuity of Madhyamaka and Yogācāra in Indian Mahāyāna Buddhism Ian Charles Harris,2023-11-27 In the past European scholars have tended to treat both Madhyamaka and Yog c ra as separate and fundamentally opposed trends in Mah y na Buddhist thought Drawing heavily on early textual evidence this work questions the validity of such a Mah y na schools hypothesis By down playing the late commentarial traditions the author attempts a general reappraisal of the epistemological and ontological writings of Nagarjuna Asanga and Vasubandhu He concludes that the overlap in all areas of doctrine is significant but particularly with respect to the teachings on the levels of truth the enlightened and unenlightened states the status of language and the nature of reality It is hoped that such investigations may provide the basis for a new theory on the proliferation of Indian Mah y na Buddhism as an organic process of assimilation to new audiences and specific contemporary problems rather than in the more schismatic manner favoured by past researchers nature with Tibetan commentaries explaining how this text can be used to contemplate and realize one's own buddha nature. Buddha nature, tathagatagarbha, is the innate potential in all living beings to become a fully awakened buddha. This book discusses a wide range of topics connected with the notion of buddha nature as presented in Indo-Tibetan Buddhism and includes an overview of the various sources of the tathagatagarbha teachings and the different ways of explaining the meaning of this term. It includes new translations of the Maitreya treatise Mahayānottaratantra Ratnagotravibhāga, the primary Indian text on the subject, its Indian commentaries, and two hitherto untranslated commentaries from the Tibetan Kagy tradition. Most important, the translator's introduction investigates in detail the meditative tradition of using the Mahayānottaratantra as a basis for Mahāmudrā instructions and the Shentong approach. This is supplemented by translations of a number of short Tibetan meditation manuals from the Kadampa Kagy and Jonang schools that use the Mahayānottaratantra as a work to contemplate and realize one's own buddha nature.

The Other Emptiness Michael R. Sheehy, Klaus-Dieter

Mathes, 2019-12-01. Presents a new vision of the Buddhist history and philosophy of emptiness in Tibet. This book brings together perspectives of leading international Tibetan studies scholars on the subject of zhentong or other emptiness. Defined as the emptiness of everything other than the continuous luminous awareness that is one's own enlightened nature, this distinctive philosophical and contemplative presentation of emptiness is quite different from rangtong emptiness that lacks independent existence, which has had a strong influence on the dissemination of Buddhist philosophy in the West. Important topics are addressed, including the history, literature, and philosophy of emptiness that have contributed to zhentong thinking in Tibet from the thirteenth century until today. The contributors examine a wide range of views on zhentong from each of the major orders of Tibetan Buddhism, highlighting the key Tibetan thinkers in the zhentong philosophical tradition. Also discussed are the early formulations of buddha nature, interpretations of cosmic time, polemical debates about emptiness in Tibet, the zhentong view of contemplation, and creative innovations of thought in Tibetan Buddhism. Highly accessible and informative, this book can be used as a scholarly resource as well as a textbook for teaching graduate and undergraduate courses on Buddhist philosophy. The book contains extremely interesting material and makes a valuable contribution to the study of Tibetan Buddhism. It will be appreciated by those interested in the development of one of the important and yet understudied of its traditions, the other emptiness tradition.

The Resonance of Emptiness Gay Watson, 1998. Presents Buddhist philosophy and practice as a resource for psychotherapy, which is responsive to the needs for a three-way dialogue between Buddhism, psychotherapy, and contemporary discourse.

God or the Divine? Bernhard Nitsche, Marcus Schmücker, 2023-03-20. Is there a language of transcendence which does not fall under the well-worn categories of monism, theism, pantheism, biblical or pagan monotheism, personal or tripersonal God, or an impersonal absolute conceived as immanent and/or transcendent? The present set of studies from different fields of research centers on the question whether it is possible to speak at all of transcendence or a divinity and if it is under what limitations does such speech proceed In current discussion in theology and in philosophy of religion there is a pervasive awareness that the inherited terms and alternatives developed in the western tradition no longer facilitate an adequate understanding of the divine Increasing familiarity with the languages of immanence and transcendence under erasure in Hindu and Buddhist thought has further jumbled our coordinates while holding out the promise of a more subtle and vital engagement with the matter itself of religious inquiry A further long established distinction between personal and impersonal also takes on rich new hues in Asian contexts where the very notion of person may undergo unsettling critiques Transgressing the categories of personal and impersonal points to the mystical depth of religious traditions emphasizes their openness and reintegrates essential elements of both perspectives Advancing with curiosity and caution all the contributors take seriously the diversity of historical religious traditions while nevertheless searching for a fresh language that may connect these traditions and provide a common ground of understanding
