

The First Men in the Moon

By

H. G. Wells

Author of "Tales of Space and Time,"
"Love and Mr. Lewisham," and "Anticipations"

"Three thousand miles from the earth to the moon. . . Marvel not, my comrades, if I appear talking to you on super-terrestrial and aerial topics. The long and the short of the matter is that I am running over the ether of a journey I have lately made."—Lewton's Autobiography

London

Of A Fire On The Moon 1st Edition:

Digital Apollo David A. Mindell, 2011-09-30 The incredible story of how human pilots and automated systems worked together to achieve the ultimate achievement in flight the lunar landings of NASA's Apollo program As Apollo 11's Lunar Module descended toward the moon under automatic control a program alarm in the guidance computer's software nearly caused a mission abort Neil Armstrong responded by switching off the automatic mode and taking direct control He stopped monitoring the computer and began flying the spacecraft relying on skill to land it and earning praise for a triumph of human over machine In Digital Apollo engineer historian David Mindell takes this famous moment as a starting point for an exploration of the relationship between humans and computers in the Apollo program In each of the six Apollo landings the astronaut in command seized control from the computer and landed with his hand on the stick Mindell recounts the story of astronauts' desire to control their spacecraft in parallel with the history of the Apollo Guidance Computer From the early days of aviation through the birth of spaceflight test pilots and astronauts sought to be more than man in a can despite the automatic controls digital computers and software developed by engineers Digital Apollo examines the design and execution of each of the six Apollo moon landings drawing on transcripts and data telemetry from the flights astronaut interviews and NASA's extensive archives Mindell's exploration of how human pilots and automated systems worked together to achieve the ultimate in flight a lunar landing traces and reframes the debate over the future of humans and automation in space The results have implications for any venture in which human roles seem threatened by automated systems whether it is the work at our desktops or the future of exploration
