

Port Vale

OF THE POTTERIES

Stoke for the first time—and claimed £5 damages against their rivals' goalkeeper, William Rowley.

It seems that Rowley, who later played for Stoke and England, had been 'seduced' by the Stoke club—or so Vale officials thought.

They sought an injunction to restrain him from playing for their rivals, and eventually judgment was entered for the Vale. And at the County Court hearing Rowley complained that he had suffered two broken ribs in an end of the season game with Stoke.

It was in 1887, by the way, that Stoke met Vale for the first time in the F.A. Cup and in this first round tie, won by the only goal of a tough game.

The following season Stoke were one of the founder members of the Football League, but not until 1892 did Vale win election to the Second Division.

Twice, however, they dropped back into the Midland League before lack of public support finally drove them out of Division II in 1907.

During this time there were no Stoke-Vale League clashes, and not until 1919-20 did Vale return to League football: they took over the fixtures of the old Leeds City club who had been expelled from Division II.

In the meantime, Stoke City were also having their troubles and one year after Vale quit League football, they also resigned and were not re-elected to Division II until 1915.

So once more there was another longish spell without a Stoke-Vale 'derby' clash to whet the appetites of the Potteries fans.

And even after the 1914-18 war when both clubs were back in the Football League fold, they were destined to miss each other after the briefest of meetings.

Stoke returned to Division II in the 1927-28 season, but the following winter it was Vale's turn to slide down into the Third Division.

Again, in the early 1930's, these two old, and by now rather resigned rivals, succeeded in dodging each other, for almost as soon as Vale had struggled back to Division II, Stoke won promotion to the First Division.

So it stayed until the Second World War, and apart from two friendlies in the 1946-47 season when Vale started up again, the clubs did not meet at all in the League.

Stoke won both the 'friendlies' 4-1 at the Victoria Ground, and 6-2 at Hanley where the crowd was almost a ground record (21,000).

In 1951 Stoke, after a long spell in Division I, were relegated once again, and with Vale later winning promotion to Division II, the 'on and off' Potteries clashes were finally renewed.

This time there was no lack of interest in the season's local tangle. 27,000 packed the Victoria Ground to watch a goalless draw in the first meeting on September 1, 1951, and when

STOKE CITY. Back row: W. Asprey, F. Mountford, J. Sellars, W. Robertson, A. Grover, J. King, N. Coleman. Middle row: F. Bowyer, G. Kelly, K. Thomson, H. Ouscroft, E. Collins, J. McCue. Front row: A. Allen, P. Ford.

PORT VALE. Back row: K. Higgs, S. Whalley, K. Jones, R. Sprson, J. Poole, A. Leake, B. Hayward. Middle row: K. Fish (trainer), R. Carberry, T. Miles, D. Cantello, H. Poole, H. Ware (coach). Front row: K. Griffiths, C. Askey, J. Williamson.

Stoke won the return 1-0 on April 25. There was a crowd of 40,000 at Vale Park.

The next season, Vale got their revenge with a 1-0 win on October 8 and they took a third point from Stoke by forcing a 1-1 draw at the Victoria Ground the following March.

These games had been just about as close as they could be, but last season Stoke exerted their superiority over a relegation-haunted Vale by winning 3-1 at the Victoria Ground in October and drawing 2-2 at Vale Park on April 20.

Needless to say, the season's best gates for each club were provided by these 'derby' games, although the crowd at
