Re-Architecture - Old Buildings Sherban Cantacuzino, 1989 Old Buildings, New Forms Françoise Bollack, 2013-11-12 It is clear that working with historic structures is both more environmentally sustainable and cost effective than new architecture and construction and many believe that the best design occurs at the intersection of old and new Françoise Astorg Bollack presents 28 examples gathered in the United States and throughout Europe and the Middle East Some are well known Mass MOCA Market Santa Caterina in Barcelona Neues Museum in Berlin and others are almost anonymous But all demonstrate a unique and appropriate solution to the problem of adapting historic structures to contemporary uses This survey of contemporary additions to older buildings is an essential addition to the architectural literature I have always loved old buildings An old building is not an obstacle but instead a foundation for continued action Designing with them is an exhilarating enterprise adding to them grafting inserting knitting new pieces into the existing built fabric is endlessly stimulating Françoise Astorg Bollack Creative Reuse of Buildings: Volume One Derek

Underground Spaces C. A. Brebbia,D. Kaliampakos,2008 It is a strongly held belief that population growth and the demand for better accommodation and leisure facilities combined with a desire to improve the landscape will result in the

Creative Re-use of Buildings: Building types, selected examples Derek Latham, 2000

Human-Centered Built Environment

Heritage Preservation Jeremy C. Wells, Barry L. Stiefel, 2018-09-20 Human Centered Built Environment Heritage Preservation addresses the question of how a human centred conservation approach can and should change practice For the most part there are few answers to this question because professionals in the heritage conservation field do not use social science research methodologies to manage cultural landscapes assess historical significance and inform the treatment of building and landscape fabric With few exceptions only academic theorists have explored these topics while failing to offer specific usable guidance on how the social sciences can actually be used by heritage professionals In exploring the nature of a human centred heritage conservation practice we explicitly seek a middle ground between the academy and practice theory and application fabric and meanings conventional and civil experts and orthodox and heterodox ideas behind practice and research We do this by positioning this book in a transdisciplinary space between these dichotomies as a way to give voice and respect to multiple perspectives without losing sight of our goal that heritage conservation practice should fundamentally benefit all people We believe that this approach is essential for creating an emancipated built heritage conservation practice that must successfully engage very different ontological and epistemological perspectives

Conservation in the Age of Consensus John Pendlebury, 2008-09-17 This new text on the subject of conservation in the built environment provides a unique holistic view on the understanding of the practice of conservation connecting it with wider societal and political forces UK practice is used as a means along with international examples for bringing together a real understanding of practice with a social science analysis of the issues The author introduces ideas about the meanings and values attached to historic environments and how that translates into public policies of conservation
