The Business of War James A. Tyner, 2006 The Business of War considers the myriad ways in which transnational labour migration intersects with the occupation of Iraq and examines the role of the USA in the Middle East The book places the war on terror within the practices of neoliberalism but also links this with migration issues and argues that it is all part of a larger business of conflict Bin Laden's Plan David Malone, 2005 Since the 9 11 attack Al Qaeda has chosen to not attack the vulnerable American homeland in order to cement the transfer of war guilt to the United States This strategic decision was a product of the marriage between Osama bin Laden's terrorist group and an American neo conservative group

The Project for the New American Century both of whose leaders had been attempting covertly and separately to provoke a unilateral American invasion of Iraq since the end of the Cold War as a first step to world domination In pursuit of this shared objective Bin Laden christened the marriage with an October surprise that facilitated the closely contested millennial election of the hawkish American group s foremost representatives the Bush Administration After nine months of Bush s presidency Al Qaeda and an immaculately impregnated American administration gave birth to the march to war against Iraq when Bin Laden intentionally unleashed the Bush Administration s crusade in the Middle East on 9 11 The American occupation of Iraq would prove to be the greatest boon to Bin Laden s most vital war objective the global recruitment coup of transferring guilt for the war to the United States Al Qaeda supported President Bush s reelection in 2004 with another October surprise so that his administration would complete the global vilification of America that is intended to be the foundation of Bin Laden s messianic bid for world domination by nuclear terrorism

Vaughan,1983 Afghanistan Peter Marsden,2009-01-30 As the battle for Afghanistan intensifies with the NATO led coalition seemingly unable to defeat the Taliban and struggling in its nation building efforts Afghanistan expert Peter Marsden looks at why it is that the Great Powers from 19th century Britain to the 20th century Soviet Union to 21st century America have so often been frustrated in attempting to impose their will on this strategically vital country In comparing the three interventions Marsden uncovers a number of similarities The rhetoric of development coming from the capitals of the West has he finds a well established heritage Every would be occupier has used some form of aid to try and turn Afghanistan into the kind of country that would suit their geopolitical objectives Marsden who has worked with British NGOs in Afghanistan for 20 years draws on his own experience as well as extensive archive research to establish how these grand interventions appear from the Afghan perspective and why it is that ordinary Afghans seem to be better off when they are attracting less not more attention from the world powers He argues that the Americans have yet to learn the lessons that the Soviets and the British before them learned that no amount of financial military or humanitarian aid will stabilise the country if it comes with violence and foreign occupation Afghanistan Aid Armies and Empires offers both an exploration of the relationship between aid and power and a fresh and original history of Afghanistan through the prism of great power politics Rebuilding America's Infrastructure Annalise Silivanch,2010-08-15 Examines the aging infrastructures of transportation energy and water and waste management in America
