Relationships In The Nhs Bridging The Gap:

Relationships in the NHS Geoff Meads, 2000 This work tackles many of the issues facing the NHS from a relational perspective and focuses on what relational healthcare has to offer today's NHS. The authors offer an appraisal of the new NHS policies and their implications for relationships.

The Challenge for Primary Care Nigel Starey, 2003 A comprehensive analysis of primary care in the UK today, this text is an introduction suitable for everyone starting work in primary care. It outlines the roles, responsibilities and relationships of those involved in primary care so that they can understand their working environment.

Trust in Experience Geoff Meads, Tricia Meads, 2018-08-11 Primary Care Trusts are a flagship initiative of government policy for modernising the NHS. The new requirement for frontline healthcare professionals to work together stretches across both community care and public health and as a result traditional boundaries are being blurred and new local roles and resources are emerging right across the primary care sector. This book draws practical lessons for Primary Care Trusts from applied research and development programmes in other parts of the NHS, other parts of the public sector, parallel developments in the private sector and relevant international experience. With contributions from the Health Management Group and its associates, this book provides a comprehensive approach and practical guidance. It includes new specific models for local development on clinical governance, evidence-based medicine, use of applied health services research, social services collaboration, new organisational partnerships, public health alliances, community hospital usage and managed care. Trust in Experience will enable readers to create PCTs as their own organisations and not simply as local agents of central policy and perceive changes as positive opportunities whilst recognising the risks involved.

Research Handbook on Public Leadership Stephen Brookes, 2023-06-01 Addressing the unprecedented challenges facing public leaders brought about by the Covid 19 pandemic, this comprehensive Research Handbook reframes the public leadership debate by offering new ways of thinking about leadership practices. Bringing together contributions from leading scholars across the world, this insightful Research Handbook illustrates how the decisions made by global leaders today will have widespread consequences for future generations.

Helping Relationships in Mental Health Steve Morgan, Jo Campling, 2013-11-11 How do you respond to the distress of a man who is sitting before you in his own flat, towels draped around his shoulders, newspaper wedged beneath the brim of his hat, an upturned frying pan over his hat and a partially filled washing up bowl balanced on top of the frying pan? He holds the bowl with one hand and a cigarette in the other while he forcefully proclaims the secret services have placed someone in the flat above to drop radioactive dust down on him all day and all night. To start with you could offer him a light for his cigarette. The most likely medical response would be to consider increasing his antipsychotic medicine, though a cursory glance at his medical history suggests that inpatient admissions and large multiple prescriptions of injections and tablets have failed to eradicate the distressing fears that the secret services have occupied the ward above. Perhaps all the increased medication will achieve is to stop him going upstairs intent on retribution It may even leaden his limbs sufficiently to make his current balancing act too difficult to sustain

Bridging the Valley of Death Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology, Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, 2013-03-13 There exists the concept of a valley of death that prevents the progress of science from the laboratory bench to the point where it provides the basis of a commercially successful business or product The future success of the UK economy has been linked to the success of translating a world class science base to generate new businesses with the consequent generation of UK jobs and wealth A troubling feature of technology companies in the UK is how many are acquired by foreign owners where the subsequent jobs and wealth are generated outside the UK It is key that the Government ensure that sufficient capital is available and recommended that the proposed bank for business possibly in partnership with the Business Growth Fund be used to promote a bond market for medium sized businesses thus providing growing small businesses with an additional source of funding It is also recommended that the Government investigate the potential to require funds to have a proportion of European SME equities There needs to be a mechanism to support SME s who do disproportionately badly from the current R D tax credit scheme The Technology Strategy Board is becoming the focus for government innovation policy and Government should consider how they can resource the TSB to provide local level advice to technology businesses The Small Business Research Initiative SBRI and the SMART Award scheme would appear to be successful initiatives but lack sufficient funds to meet the demand from companies

Service the authors share a commitment to understanding the practices of medical research as embedded in both local social worlds and global markets Their collective concern is to rethink the conventional ethical demarcations between paid and unpaid research services in light of the social and material organisation of medical research practices Rather than warn against economic incursions into medical knowledge and health practice or alternatively the reduction of local experience to the standards of bioethics we hope to illuminate the array of practices knowledges and techniques through which the value of medical research is brought into being This book was originally published as a special issue of Journal of Cultural Economy

Health Technology Assessment, Courts and the Right to Healthcare Daniel Wang, 2021-12-30 Both developing and developed countries face an increasing mismatch between what patients expect to receive from healthcare and what the public healthcare systems can afford to provide Where there has been a growing recognition of the entitlement to receive healthcare the frustrated expectations with regards to the level of provision has led to lawsuits challenging the denial of funding for health treatments by public health systems This book analyses the impact of courts and litigation on the way health systems set priorities and make rationing decisions In particular it focuses on how the judicial protection of the right to healthcare can impact the institutionalization functioning and centrality of Health Technology Assessment HTA for decisions about the funding of treatment Based on the case study of three jurisdictions Brazil Colombia and England it shows that courts can be a key driver for the institutionalization of HTA These case studies show the paradoxes of judicial control which can promote accountability and impair it demand administrative competence and undermine bureaucratic capacities The case studies offer a nuanced and evidence informed understanding of these paradoxes in the context of health care by showing how the judicial control of priority setting decisions in health care can be used to require and control an explicit scheme for health technology assessment but can also limit and circumvent it It will be essential for those researching Medical Law and Healthcare Policy Human Rights Law and Social Rights
