Effects of Alevi-Sunni Marriages on Children's Religious Education and Family Relations Dr. Fatma Kurttekin, 2024-12-31 In this study the views of parents in Alevi Sunni marriages on the phenomenon of religion and their children s religious education are examined While there has been a growing body of research on the role and significance of religion in Alevi Sunni families limited attention has been paid to their attitudes towards their children s religious education particularly within the context of cross religious marriages Based on this this study aims to fill this research gap by examining the perspectives of parents in Alevi Sunni marriages on their children s religious education and family dynamics using qualitative methods to provide in depth insights Ten families living in Sivas Ankara and Tunceli who were contacted through snowball and purposive sampling participated in the study in which qualitative research techniques were used The data used in the study were collected through questionnaires and semi structured interview forms The data was analzed with the content analysis It was determined that the Alevi Sunni difference did not have a significant impact on the participants religious attitudes or their children s religious education Almost all parents stated that they wanted their children to choose their own path by acquiring experience and knowledge about both religious interpretations understandings The study identified two primary areas of difficulty in Alevi Sunni families familial opposition to the participants decision to marry and conflicts surrounding the children s religious education These tensions may stem from societal pressures to conform to sectarian norms and the fear of losing religious identity through cross mixed intrafaith marriages Such pressures highlight the need for open dialogue and acceptance within families which many participants reported as key to resolving conflicts The provision of religious education in the family and the religious identity of children have been discussed in a separate study Therefore in this study participants views on compulsory religious education activities which are also a subject of debate in society were evaluated In parallel with the findings in the literature the participants opinions were grouped in three categories namely abolishing the courses making the courses optional and improving the courses along with preserving their compulsory status Following the interviews it was seen that the participants could have arguments mostly due to external factors and that their own religious understanding did not have any impact on family life religious attitudes or child rearing Attention was drawn to the need for freedom from prejudices acceptance of the other as he she is honesty trust and a communicative environment of dialogue in order to reduce the tension in these two areas leading role in shaping the character of their religious and spiritual lives even well after they leave home and often for the rest of their lives We know a lot about the importance of parents in faith transmission However we know much less about the actual beliefs feelings and activities of the parents themselves what Christian Smith and Amy Adamczyk call the intergenerational transmission of religious faith and practice To address that gap this book reports the findings of a new national study of religious parents in the United States The findings and conclusions in Handing Down the Faith are based on 215 in depth personal interviews with religious parents from many traditions and different parts of the country and sophisticated analyses of two nationally representative surveys of American parents about their religious parenting Handing Down the Faith explores the background beliefs informing how and why religious parents seek to pass on religion to their children examines how parenting styles interact with parent religiousness to shape effective religious transmission shows how parents have been influenced by their experiences as children influenced by their own parents reveals how religious parents view their congregations and what they most seek out in a local church synagogue temple or mosque explores the experiences and outlooks of immigrant parents including Latino Catholics East Asian Buddhists South Asian Muslims and Indian Hindus Smith and Adamczyk step back to consider how American religion has transformed over the last 100 years and to explain why parents today shoulder such a huge responsibility in transmitting religious faith and practice to their children The book is rich in empirical evidence and unique in many of the topics it explores and explains providing a variety of sometimes counterintuitive findings that will interest scholars of religion social scientists interested in the family parenting and socialization clergy and religious educators and leaders and religious parents themselves the followers of religions across the world need to be and to grow in dialogical relationships of respect and understanding An essential aim of interreligious education is the promotion of understanding and engagement between people of different religions and therefore it has great potential to contribute to the common good of the global community Interreligious education has grown from the interfaith movement whose beginning is usually identified with the World Parliament of Religions held in Chicago in 1893 This was the first time in history that leaders of the eastern and western religions had come together for dialogue and to consider working together for global unity
