The Practical Practice of Marriage and Family Therapy Terry S Trepper, Charles E Campbell, Mark O'Dell, Lorna L Hecker, 2013-09-05 It is a truism among therapists in most mental health disciplines that the most important aspects of clinical practice are learned only after one has left graduate school and entered the real world While many of the basics could be covered in graduate school supervisors of new therapists often feel that the fundamentals are only addressed in detail after a therapist has been employed In response to this predicament Odell and Campbell offer The Practical Practice of Marriage and Family Therapy Things My Training Supervisor Never Told Me as a useful daily guide for graduate students and beginning marriage and family therapists that will ease the transition from learner to practicing professional in the clinical domain Written in a refreshing and unpretentious style much the way a caring seasoned professional would mentor a novice practitioner The Practical Practice of Marriage and Family Therapy covers the major areas that typical graduate programs don t have time to address including how to integrate theoretical training with pragmatic clinical practice to maximize therapeutic effectiveness face the practical problems involving the financial elements of clinical work become a thoroughly credentialed professional develop an approach to becoming specialized uncover the motivation for being a professional marriage and family therapist increase one's ability to maintain high level practice over a lifetime of work by developing coping strategies and methods of safeguarding one's own mental health. Addressing the unique approach of their book, Odell and Campbell explain. Whereas most texts are handbooks on the actual theories and techniques used with couples and families, this book is designed to be a guide to the beginning professional as s/he leaves the graduate training environment and enters the mental health field as it exists in contemporary America. Our hope is that this book would be one of those chosen by the novice practicing professional if s/he could only take two or three with them into the field as it contains material that is most useful for everyday work in clinical settings.

Sexual Coercion in Dating Relationships E. Sandra Byers, Lucia F. O'Sullivan, 1996. Sexual Coercion in Dating Relationships represents the next generation of research in the area of sexual coercion. This collection of critical analyses of current research and possible directions for future research benefits all researchers, counselors, and educators who need to thoroughly understand research efforts in this field. The clear analyses allow readers to evaluate critical issues and progress in the field to date. Outside of research and feminist communities, sexual coercion is frequently minimized and too often stereotyped. The words sexual coercion, synonymous with sexual aggression and sexual assault, conjure in the minds of many the image of a deranged man attacking a woman stranger in a dark place where she should know better than to be walking alone. This and other stereotypes are challenged by the authors of Sexual Coercion in the Dating Relationship. The chapters examine other important issues that have yet received little research attention. For example, one author tests the empirical assumptions inherent in a prominent theory about the causes of sexual coercion. Some of the authors challenge the assumption that only women are pressured or forced to engage in unwanted or nonconsensual sex. Other authors address issues related to the prevention of sexual coercion of women and challenge current conceptions of women's sexuality. Still others identify methodological problems related to research on sexual coercion, such as current methods of identifying attitudes supportive of the use of sexual coercion. All of the chapters challenge current beliefs related to the issue of sexual coercion and are designed to spur researchers and educators forward into new ground. With the publication of this book, readers are forced to re-think their assumptions on sexual coercion with the new statistics and research on these topics. evaluates a prominent theory of the causes of sexual coercion; the traditional script examines men's and women's use of sexual influence in their dating relationships; the types of behavior men and women use to influence their partners to engage in unwanted sex and the associated consequences for the individuals and the relationship; compares men's and women's reactions to sexual coercion; presents a model to predict women's resistance; and evaluates effective practical measures of prevention for women.

evaluates attitudes toward rape literature and the predictive ability of assessing attitudes; critical reviews of current conceptions of women's sexuality and the need to restructure culturally endorsed attitudes in our prevention efforts; reviews methodological problems plaguing many current research investigations and the political ramifications of many investigations in this area. Because this book presents information related to the prevention and experience of sexual coercion Sexual Coercion in Dating Relationships is helpful in developing long term research and preventive programs This sourcebook also helps researchers expert witnesses counselors especially college support staff and college and university educators provide information to students and others about sexual coercion

NGO Field Workers in Bangladesh Mokbul Morshed Ahmad,2017-11-22 This title was first published in 2002 NGOs are receiving increasing international attention and resources from policy makers donors academics and others The New Policy Agenda accepts NGOs as agents for social welfare alongside the state and as fostering democracy in the Developing World Astonishingly however there have been very few studies and no books on NGO field workers This study of field workers in Bangladesh provides excellent insights into this neglected field Bangladesh is an excellent example as since independence in 1971 it has been a donor dependent country both financially and functionally and since the 1980s has concentrated this funding towards NGOs rather than to the state The book shows how field workers are seen simply as implementers carrying out directions given by their superiors and never being consulted on how best to achieve their goals The book examines four types of NGOs international national regional and small local in a number of sample locations It compares the benefits and facilities provided by each NGO to their field workers then explores the socio economic background of both field workers and their mid level managers and examines the interactions between these two groups and between field workers and their clients It also looks at the field workers personal and professional lives and problems and details their opinions on their NGO s activities and policies and on development The findings show that NGO managers and donors lack knowledge of the realities in the field and do not realise how certain policies such as their positive discrimination of women can have negative results It proposes that NGO field workers should be more active in policy making and puts forward several recommendations for changes in the management and structure of future NGOs The
