Library, 1977 Experience and Adventures of a Collector George Encil, 1989 Always whenever George Encil acquired a new work of art something completely obvious and yet very rare then happened He didn't just become the owner rather he undertook a sponsorship He has adopted a piece from the orphanage of the world's art supply and received it into his collection In many cases a deed was established which brought to the work an Interpretation which befitted it for the first time since the piece issued from the shaping hands of the artist Each stage play each performance of a piece of music brings today nearly perfect expositions of its creator's intentions only in the area of visual art do people think it permissible to make a junk room out of the gallery from which in case of financial need a piece can be thrown upon the slave block of the international art market The author opposes this attitude vehemently In the examples taken from the narrative of his experiences he demonstrates that with the acquisition of a work of art commences the duty of preserving it of restoring it finding the requisite frame and allotting it a worthy place for itself The exposition and proclamation of this conviction is the mission to which the author feels called His report is an appeal for people to take an interest in the ever dwindling supply of works of art and he would prefer to see every collector become a godfather rather than a possessor an interpreter rather than a beneficiary This proclamation does not exempt public collections in which following exemplary interpretations even stepchildren of art will be sheltered A lifetime spent as a collector qualifies the author for this proclamation and the presentation before us supports and explains this attitude Bertoia, Mirola and the Farnese Court Diane DeGrazia, 1991 Study of Jacopo Bertoia regarded as the finest painter of the late 16th century Farnese court and of Girolamo Mirola now thought to have painted much of the work previously attributed to Bertoia Artibus Et Historiae, 1995 The International Caravaggesque Movement Benedict Nicolson, 1979 Art Books, 1950-1979 R.R.
