Fund. Legal Dept.,2012-03-14 Liberalization of capital flows can benefit both source and recipient countries by improving resource allocation reducing financing costs increasing competition and accelerating the development of domestic financial systems The empirical evidence however is mixed on the benefits and it suggests that countries benefit most when they meet certain thresholds related to institutional and financial development The principal cost of capital flow liberalization stems from the economic instability brought on by volatile capital flows In extreme cases sudden stops or reversals in capital inflows can trigger financial crises followed by prolonged periods of weak growth Small States in the Global Economy David Peretz,Rumman Faruqi,Eliawony J. Kisanga,2001 This collection of papers presented to the Commonwealth Secretariat World Bank Joint Task Force conferences sets out an agenda for future national regional and international actions to address economic vulnerabilities of small states The Multilateral Aspects of Policies Affecting Capital Flows International Monetary Fund. Monetary and Capital Markets Department,International Monetary Fund. Strategy, Policy, & Review Department,International Monetary Fund. Research Dept.,2011-10-13 The crisis is prompting a reconsideration of capital flows and the policies that affect them A breakdown in the domestic stability of a large country can spill over into stress in other countries and even to the global system as a whole The activities of global institutions and markets some regulated and some not can bear on the riskiness of flows Thus national policies affecting capital flows can transmit multilaterally This transmission has not been fully appreciated by national policymakers Further they may not have incentives to take full account of the cross border effects of their policies Looking ahead the upward trend in the volume of capital flows can be expected to continue making it ever more important to address the associated cross border risks This paper aims to draw greater attention to the multilateral aspects of policies affecting capital flows Previous work by the Fund has focused on the policies of recipient countries mainly emerging market economies EMEs and addressed the circumstances in which capital flow management measures CFMs would be appropriate This paper provides a complementary assessment of regulatory and supervisory policies of advanced economies as well as large advanced economy monetary policy Moreover it addresses the multilateral transmission of CFMs Spillovers from China MissNkunde Mwase,Mr.Papa M N'Diaye,Ms.Hiroko Oura,Mr.Frantisek Ricka,Katsiaryna Svirydzhenka,Ms.Yuanyan S Zhang,2016-09-27 Although China s much needed transition to a new growth path is proceeding broadly as expected the transition is still fraught with uncertainty including regarding the Chinese authorities ability to achieve a smooth rebalancing of growth and the extent of the attendant slowdown in activity Thus in the short run the transition process is likely to entail significant spillovers through trade and commodities and possibly financial channels This note sheds some light on the size and nature of financial spillovers from China by looking at the impact of developments in China on global financial markets with a particular emphasis on differentiation across asset classes and markets The note shows that economic and financial developments in China have a significant impact on global financial markets but these effects reflect primarily the central role the country plays in goods trade and commodity markets

rather than China's financial integration in global markets and the direct financial linkages it has with other countries
