contributed volume is the first known collection of essays that brings together scholarly review critiques and primary and secondary data to assess how sociocultural factors influence health behavior in South Asian women. The essays are authored by working scholars or healthcare practitioners from Bangladesh, India, and Pakistan. In the chapters, the contributors acknowledge social, economic, and environmental factors to recommend improved interventions and health policy for women of the region. Studies on South Asian women's health have targeted clinical evidence with less attention on social and environmental factors driving health recovery and health outcomes. The South Asian region, more than any other part of the world, is driven by traditional and cultural forces that are possibly the most significant factors determining a woman's health awareness and her rights to adopt healthy behavior or pursue health recovery. Women of the region share a common culture and political history, and there are benefits to understanding their problems collectively in order to design joint improvements in health policy for women. Salient but neglected socio-political areas that influence health behavior and health outcomes in women of the region are covered in the chapters, including Oral Narrations of Social Rejection Suffered by South Asian Women with Irreversible Health Conditions, Women's Role in Decision Making for Health Care in South Asia, Poverty, Health Coverage, and Credit Opportunities for South Asian Women, Refugee Displaced and Climate-Affected Women of South Asia, and Their Health Challenges, The Political Sociology of South Asian Women's Health. The Sociology of South Asian Women's Health is a useful resource for students, researchers, and academicians, especially those interested in public health, gender, social policy, and occupational management, as well as healthcare practitioners, administrators, health and public policy makers, government officers, and scholars of South Asian studies.
