Chilsholm,1866 Settlement and Land Use in Micheldever Hundred, Hampshire, 700-1100 Eric C.

Klingelhöfer,1991 Settlement Ecology Glenn Davis Stone,2022-11-08 What determines agrarian settlement patterns Glenn Davis Stone addresses this question by analyzing the spatial aspects of agrarian ecology the relationship between how farmers farm and where they settle and how farming and settlement change as population density rises Crosscutting the fields of cultural anthropology archaeology geography and agricultural economics Settlement Ecology presents a new perspective on the process of agricultural intensification and explores the relationships between intensification and settlement decision making Stone insists that paleotechnic traditional agriculture must be seen as a social process with the social organization of agricultural work playing a key role in shaping settlement characteristics These relationships are demonstrated in a richly documented case study of the Kofyar who have been settling a frontier in the Nigerian savanna The history of agricultural change and the development of the settlement pattern are reconstructed through ethnography archival research and aerial photos and are analyzed using innovative graphical methods Stone also reflects on the limits of ecological determination of settlement comparing the farming and settlement trajectories of the Kofyar and Tiv on the same frontier

Contemporary China's Land Use Policy Long Cheng,2020-09-24 This book discusses contemporary China s land use policy the Link Policy which calls for land consolidation and rural resettlement to achieve the goal of preserving farmland while also providing more space for urban development Given the limited analyses and commentaries on the Link Policy in the literature particularly in English language articles the book systematically presents and analyzes China s land use policy by assessing the impacts of the Link Policy on rural life and how effective the Link Policy is in achieving its objectives It also examines how satisfied farmers are with the policy and what the contributing factors are Drawing on a critical review of the literature field observations and interviews with resettled farmers the book offers insights into China s land use policy and compares it with similar policy instruments in other countries Presenting research findings that help readers gain a holistic understanding of the Link Policy in China and its implications the book is a valuable resource for professionals in other developing countries that are facing similar challenges in terms of balancing urban development and farmland conservation

Environment and Land Use in Africa M. F. Thomas, G. W. Whittington, 2023-07-26 Originally published in 1969 the contributors to this volume examine the natural and social environments of selected areas in Africa and study in detail some particular problems and their solutions Climate landforms soils and vegetation are discussed as fundamental aspects of the physical environment The next section discusses the social and political environment demography agricultural systems and the legacies of colonial administration Case studies in Malawi Nigeria Sudan Eswatini and Kenya are analysed The book is aimed at students of African studies geographers and agriculturalists

Forsaken Harvest Luis G. Cueva, 2020-11-05 This historical monograph examines the decline of the hacienda estates within Jalisco Mexico during the early decades of the twentieth century The book also explores the impact of the land reform program of President L zaro C rdenas in transforming the agrarian economic structure of the region This study contributes to an ongoing lively debate about the hacienda system and the meaning of C rdenas s reforms This is an important work because it explores the evolution of a regional socioeconomic system that promoted urban industrial growth at the expense of the rural poor The model of regional development described is applicable to other areas of Mexico and underdeveloped Third World nations with extensive peasant populations The research for this investigation has wider implications regarding issues of global hunger and malnutrition

Peasant Perceptions of Landscape Stephen Miles, Stuart Brookes, 2021-11-04 Peasant Perceptions of Landscape marks a change in the discipline of landscape history as well as making a major contribution to the history of everyday life Until now there has been no sustained analysis of how ordinary medieval and early modern people experienced and perceived their material environment and constructed their identities in relation to the places where they lived This volume provides exactly such an analysis by examining peasant perceptions in one geographical area over the long period from AD 500 to 1650 The study takes as its focus Ewelme hundred a well documented and archaeologically rich area of lowland vale and hilly Chiltern wood pasture comprising fourteen ancient parishes The analysis draws on a range of sources including legal depositions and thousands of field names and bynames preserved in largely unpublished deeds and manorial documents Archaeology makes a major contribution particularly for understanding the period before 900 but more generally in reconstructing the fabric of villages and the framework for inhabitants spatial practices and experiences In its focus on the way inhabitants interacted with the landscape in which they worked prayed and socialised Peasant Perceptions of Landscape supplies a new history of the lives and attitudes of the bulk of the rural population who so seldom make their mark in traditional landscape analysis or documentary history

Spatial Analysis in Archaeology Ian Hodder, Clive Orton, 1976-10-14 This 1976 text is a pioneering study in the applications to archaeology of modern statistical and quantitative techniques The authors show how these techniques when sensitively employed can dramatically extend and refine the information presented in distribution maps and other analyses of spatial relationships Techniques of interpretation by inspection can now be made more powerful and rigorous at the same time interest has turned from the examination of such sites and artefacts as things to the spatial relationships between such things their relationships to one another and to landscape features soils and other resources This book was the first to apply the available techniques systematically to the special problems and interests of archaeologists It also demonstrates to geographers and other social scientists who may be familiar with analogous applications in their own fields the exciting interdisciplinary developments this facilitates for example in studies of exchange networks trade and settlement patterns and cultural history

Economic Geography Trevor J. Barnes, Brett

Christophers, 2018-01-16 This volume in the celebrated Critical Introductions to Geography series introduces readers to the vibrant discipline of economic geography The authors provide an original definition of the discipline and they make a strong case for its vital importance in understanding the dynamic interconnections movements and emerging trends shaping our globalized world Economic Geography addresses the key theories and methods that form the basis of the discipline and describes its communities of practice and relations to related fields including economics and sociology Numerous illustrative examples explore how economic geographers examine the world and how and why the discipline takes the forms it does demonstrating the critical value of economic geography to making sense of globalization uneven development money and finance urbanization environmental change and industrial and technological transformation Engaging and thought provoking Economic Geography A Critical Introduction is the ideal resource for students studying across a range of subject areas as well as the general reader with an interest in world affairs and economics

The Medieval Antecedents of English

Agricultural Progress Bruce M.S. Campbell, 2023-05-31 Until recently historians tended to stress the perceived technological and ecological shortcomings of medieval agriculture The ten essays assembled in this volume offer a contrary view Based upon close documentary analysis of the demesne farms managed for and by lords they show that by 1300 in the most commercialized parts of England production decisions were based upon relative factor costs and commodity prices Moreover when and where economic conditions were ripe and environmental and institutional circumstances favourable medieval cultivators successfully secured high and ecologically sustainable levels of land productivity They achieved this by integrating crop and livestock production into the sort of manure intensive systems of mixed husbandry which later underpinned the more celebrated output growth of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries If medieval agriculture failed to fulfill the production potential provided by wider adoption of such systems this is more appropriately explained by the want of the kind of market incentives that might have justified investment innovation and specialization on the scale that characterized the so called agricultural revolution than either the lack of appropriate agricultural technology or the innate backwardness of medieval cultivators

Life and Land Use on the Bahrain Islands Curtis E. Larsen, 1983

According to archeological and historical records the Bahrain Islands of the Arabian Gulf were the home of a flourishing civilization four thousand years ago

Then as now these islands served as an important locus of maritime trade but they were also characterized as a land of copious artesian springs and fertile fields Modern Bahrain in contrast is beset by environmental and demographic problems the depletion of the artesian water supply abandonment of rural agricultural lands and rapid population growth In this exemplary interdisciplinary study Curtis E Larsen combines archeological geological historical and anthropological methods to reconstruct the paleoenvironmental and socioeconomic context that links Bahrain s present to its past

The Earth as Transformed by Human Action B. L. Turner, William C. Clark, Robert W. Kates, John F. Richards, Jessica T. Mathews, William B. Meyer, 1993-01-29 The Earth as Transformed by Human Action is the culmination of a mammoth undertaking involving the examination of the toll our continual strides forward technical and social take on our world The purpose of such a study is to document the changes in the biosphere that have taken place over the last 300 years to contrast global patterns of change to those appearing on a regional level and to explain the major human forces that have driven these changes The first section deals strictly with the major human forces of the past 300 years and the second is a detailed account of the transformations of the global environment wrought by human action The final section examines a range of perspectives and theories that purport to explain human actions with regard to the biosphere

A Bibliography of Resource Materials in the Field of Regional Economic Development Regional Economic Development Institute (Pittsburgh, Pa.), 1966

Modern World Development Michael Chisholm, 2020-05-06 Since the time of Adam Smith there has been a voluminous literature concerned with the differing wealth of nations and the variation in the nature of economic growth and several schools of thought have held precedence at different times The fundamental mechanisms have been regarded by some as capital accumulation and investment and by others as entrepreneurial ability Modern World Development first published in 1982 shows that the length of time under consideration materially affects the relative significance assigned to the factors involved similarly the size of an area cannot be ignored Through an examination of the major theories of economic growth the role of natural resources the core periphery model of world development environmental change and the concept of human capital Professor Chisholm has written a stimulating and important book which will appeal to students of economics history and geography

Interpreting the Landscape Michael Aston, 2002-09-11 Most places in Britain have had a local history written about them Up until this century these histories have addressed more parochial issues such as the life of the manor rather than explaining the features and changes in the landscape in a factual manner Much of what is visible today in Britain s landscape is the result of a chain of social and natural processes and can be interpreted through fieldwork as well as from old maps and documents Michael Aston uses a wide range of source material to study the complex and dynamic history of the countryside illustrating his points with aerial photographs maps plans and charts He shows how to understand the surviving remains as well as offering his own explanations for how our landscape has evolved

The Global Economic System I. Wallace, 2002-09-26 Provides a unique treatment of world economic geography as a whole and examines the principle philosophies that have shaped our study of it identifies the importance of the biophysical as well as cultural and political environments

Pre-Hispanic Occupance in the Valley of Sonora, Mexico William E. Doolittle, 1988 This book presents a great amount of new information for a poorly known or understood area of northern Mexico and provides a pleasant integration of the methods and theories of anthropology geography and ecology in a well organized manner This report represents an important contribution to our understanding of cultural evolution and environmental adaptation in the Valley of Sonora and lays a strong framework for future studies and discussions Journal of Arizona History
