

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN RURAL AND URBAN COMMUNITIES

Rural people are different from those living in urban areas. These differences are mainly due to the environment and its consequent impact on the lives of the people

S.No	Item of comparison	Rural community	Urban community
1.	General environment and orientation to nature	Closely associated with nature. Direct effect of natural elements like rains, drought, heat, etc, on their lives	Remote from nature. Predominance of man-made environment
2.	Occupation	Major occupation is farming. Non-agricultural occupations are secondary in importance	Most of the jobs are non-agricultural and specialized
3.	Working conditions	Being agriculture work in open air	Work in closed environment. Greater isolation from nature. Poor fresh air
4.	Family	Works as a unit. More unity or integrity and more contacts between members	Work in different occupations and contact is less between members

Kandel, David L. Brown, 2006-10-12 CALVIN L. BEALE In considering how to introduce the subject of rural population change in st the 21 Century I nd myself re ecting on my own experience as a demographer for the U S Department of Agriculture When I arrived at the Department the post World War II modernization of farming was well under way Each year my colleague Gladys Bowles and I had the unpopular task of announcing how much the farm population had decreased in the prior year It was hard to say that the phenomenon was someone s fault Dramatic reductions in labor requirements per unit of agricultural output were occurring everywhere and not just in the United States But politically blame had to be assigned and whichever political party was not in the White House was certain to place the blame squarely on the current administration The demographic consequences of this trend were major In a 22 year period from 1941 to 1962 the net loss of farm population from migration and cessation of farming averaged over a million people per year It took eight years after the war before an administration was willing to begin to talk about the need to diversify rural employment By that time farm residents had already become a minority of rural people However well into the 1970s I continued to receive inquiries from people who still equated rural with farm or who could not envision what rural nonfarm people did for a living 21st Century Sociology: A Reference Handbook Clifton D.

The Housing Crisis and Homelessness: How Economic and Social Factors Shape America's Housing Landscape Hans Collier,2025-04-03 The housing crisis and homelessness in America are complex issues that intertwine economic policies social dynamics and individual lives This book unravels these complexities providing a comprehensive examination of the factors that shape the nation s housing landscape Through detailed analysis and compelling narratives the book sheds light on the multifaceted nature of housing instability and its far reaching impacts The book begins by exploring the historical context of housing in America tracing the evolution of policies and societal changes that have contributed to the current crisis It examines the role of urban development economic shifts and legislative actions in creating an environment where secure affordable housing has become increasingly elusive for many The narrative is enriched with real life stories and case studies that illustrate the human side of these systemic issues making the data and statistics relatable and deeply moving In the subsequent sections the book delves into the economic factors that exacerbate housing instability It scrutinizes the housing market mortgage practices and the impact of economic downturns on housing availability and affordability The book highlights how financial mechanisms and market trends contribute to the widening gap between those who can afford stable housing and those who cannot Rebuilding the Unity of Health and the Environment in Rural America Institute of Medicine,Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice,Roundtable on Environmental Health Sciences, Research, and Medicine,2006-03-28 Throughout much of its history the United States was predominantly a rural society The need to provide sustenance resulted in many people settling in areas where food could be raised for their families Over the past century however a quiet shift from a rural to an urban society occurred such that by 1920 for the first time more members of our society lived in urban regions than in rural ones This was made possible by changing agricultural practices No longer must individuals raise their own food and the number of person hours and acreage required to produce food has steadily been decreasing because of technological advances according to Roundtable member James Merchant of the University of Iowa The Institute of Medicine s Roundtable on Environmental Health Science Research and Medicine held a regional workshop at the University of Iowa on November 29 and 30 2004 to look at rural environmental health issues Iowa with its expanse of rural land area growing agribusiness aging population and increasing immigrant population provided an opportunity to explore environmental health in a region of the country that is not as densely populated As many workshop participants agreed the shifting agricultural practices as the country progresses from family operations to large scale corporate farms will have impacts on environmental health This report describes and summarizes
