White,1996-10-25 The book provides a genealogy of dialectical materialism by tracing the development of Marxist ideas from their origins in German philosophical thought to the ideology of the social democratic groups in Russia in the 1890s from which Lenin and the revolutionary generation emerged It reconstructs Marx's original conceptions and examines the modifications that were made to them by himself and by his Russian followers which eventually gave rise to the doctrine of dialectical materialism first expounded by Plekhanov

Dialectical Passions Gail Day,2010-12-05 Exploring core debates in discourses on art from the New Left to theories of critical postmodernism and beyond Day counters the belief that recent tendencies in art fail to be adequately critical and challenges the political inertia that results from these conclusions The Philosophy of the Novel J. M. Bernstein,1984 Lukács's Theory of the novel has long been a key work in the philosophy but not the sociology of literature J M Bernstein shows that Theory of the Novel must be seen in conjunction with History and Class Consciousness as a major contribution to a Marxist hermeneutics He ties the philosophy of Lukács to Kant Hegel and Marx and contends that the categories structuring the novel are the central concepts of Kant's philosophy and that therefore the novel is marked by the same antinomies that infect Kant's system Bernstein offers a concise account of dialectical theory and a telling analysis of Western Hegelian Marxism He concludes with a critique of contemporary literary and critical practices practices which only reinforce the antinomies already present in the novel From cover The Palgrave Handbook of Critical Theory Michael J. Thompson,2017-01-20 This handbook is the only major survey of critical theory from philosophical political sociological psychological and historical vantage points It emphasizes not only on the historical and philosophical roots of critical theory but also its current themes and trends as well as future applications and directions It addresses specific areas of interest that have forged the critical theory tradition such as critical social psychology aesthetics and the critique of culture communicative action and the critique of instrumental reason It is intended for those interested in exploring the influential paradigm of critical theory from multiple interdisciplinary perspectives and understanding its contribution to the humanities and the social sciences Recovering the Later Georg Lukács Matthew J. Smetona,2023-04-25 New resources for the critique of capitalism in culture from the late writings of Georg Lukács one of the first authors in the tradition of Western Marxism The Hungarian literary critic philosopher and Marxist social theorist Georg Lukács is best known for his 1923

History and Class Consciousness in which he offered an influential critique of reification from the standpoint of a dialectical conception of totality. While Lukács's early works have been central to the study of Marxist thought, his later works have often been dismissed as political accommodations to Stalinism. In this new study, Matthew Smetona argues for a revisionist interpretation of Lukács's later writings on topics as diverse as aesthetics, politics, and ontology. Smetona demonstrates that these writings reveal a methodological unity that follows directly from History and Class Consciousness, in which realism in both literary and extraliterary senses becomes the basis for the critique of reification. As Lukács had demonstrated, reification is that process by which the social relations between persons seem to take on the character of a thing. Rooted in Marx's concept of commodity fetishism, the critique of reification proved in Lukács's hands to be a flexible tool capable of clarifying all manner of obfuscations that arise within the social relations that capitalism produces. To recover the later work of Lukács is to open up new horizons for Marxist cultural criticism.
