In 1972 in an attempt to elevate the stature of the crime novel influential crime writer and critic Julian Symons cast numerous Golden Age detective fiction writers into literary perdition as Humdrums condemning their focus on puzzle plots over stylish writing and explorations of character setting and theme. This volume explores the works of three prominent British Humdrums: Cecil John Charles Street, Freeman Wills Crofts, and Alfred Walter Stewart, revealing their work to be more complex as puzzles and as social documents than Symons allowed. By championing the intrinsic merit of these mystery writers, the study demonstrates that reintegrating the Humdrums into mystery genre studies provides a fuller understanding of the Golden Age of detective fiction and its aftermath.

Anna Katharine Green (1846-1935) was an American poet and novelist. Green has been called the mother of the detective novel. Green is credited with shaping detective fiction into its classic form and developing the series detective. Her main character was detective Ebenezer Gryce of the New York Metropolitan Police Force, but in three novels he is assisted by the nosy society spinster Amelia Butterworth, the prototype for Miss Marple, Miss Silver, and other creations. She also invented the girl detective in the character of Violet Strange, a debutante with a secret life as a sleuth. Indeed, as journalist Kathy Hickman writes, Green stamped the mystery genre with the distinctive features that would influence writers from Agatha Christie and Conan Doyle to contemporary authors of suspenseful whodunits. She was one of the first writers of detective fiction in America and distinguished herself by writing well-plotted, legally accurate stories. In addition to creating elderly spinster and young female sleuths, Green's innovative plot devices included dead bodies in libraries, newspaper clippings as clues, the coroner's inquest, and expert witnesses.
