Holtz, 2012-12-06 Most of us do not realize that we are living in revolutionary times To a large degree we are in a time of massive economic and industrial change and perhaps history will one day record this era as the Second Industrial Revolution Certainly we have been made aware of the decline of smoke stack industries and of the rapid rise of what might be called the information industries in the United States and presumably in most of the western world Several best selling authors have assured us that we must change or perish and a great many industrialists appear to agree Ironically we have also been all but promised a return to a modern form of that very cottage industry economy that the first Industrial Revolution wiped out Some of our leading savants envision individuals working at home on desktop computers connected via hardwire telephone to an employer's large central computer Will this come to pass Perhaps the industrial economic indicators appear to point in that direction although there are the problems of numerous laws and regulations labor laws and OSHA laws to name only two areas and ignoring for the moment the reaction of our labor unions that would be most difficult to reconcile with such an arrangement In a sense it is the computer that has brought about this condition     Techniques for Productivity Improvement

While enormous amounts of time and money have been invested in office automation hardware and software the needs of the employees using these tools have been largely ignored The result is a series of mismatches between the human operator and the things in his or her work environment     Artificial Intelligence

Harry Katzan Jr.,2023-08-04 This book is a complete introduction to artificial intelligence for its beginning in 1956 in a conference on the subject at Dartmouth College The term AI was coined by John McCarthy and others The book covers the modern topics such as Chatgpt and Watson at IBM The book covers learning thinking generative systems and other modern topics The book is easy to read and is accessible to persons of all ages There is no violence no sex and no bad language
