Modes of Religiosity Harvey Whitehouse, 2004-05-19 Religions_ whatever else they may be_ are configurations of cultural information reproduced across space and time Beginning with this seemingly obvious fact of religious transmission Harvey Whitehouse goes on to construct a testable theory of how religions are created passed on and changed At the center of his theory are two divergent modes of religiosity the imagistic and the doctrinal Drawing from recent advances in cognitive science Whitehouse's theory shows how religions tend to coalesce around one of these two poles depending on how religious behaviors are remembered In the imagistic mode rituals have a lasting impact on people's minds haunting not only our memories but influencing the way we ruminate on religious topics These psychological features are linked to the scale and structure of religious communities fostering small exclusive and ideologically heterogeneous ritual groupings or factions In the doctrinal mode on the other hand religious knowledge is primarily spread through intensive and repetitive teaching religious communities are contrastingly large inclusive and centrally regulated While these tendencies have long been recognized in the history of the study of religion the modes of religiosity theory is unique in that it explains why these tendencies exist More importantly Whitehouse does not give the final word but invites us to join a series of collaborative networks among anthropologists historians archaeologists and psychologists currently trying to falsify confirm or refine the theory Are you tired of the flood of descriptions and interpretations of religions which offer no clear strategy for evaluation comparison and testing Modes of Religiosity can provide you with a new way to think when you think about religion Historical Dictionary of the Baha'i

James W. Jones, 2014-02-04 Religion has been responsible for both horrific acts against humanity and some of humanity s most sublime teachings and experiences How is this possible From a contemporary psychoanalytic perspective this book seeks to answer that question in terms of the psychological dynamic of idealisation At the heart of living religion is the idealisation of everyday objects Such idealisations provide much of the transforming power of religious experience which is one of the positive contributions of religion to the psychological life However idealisation can also lead to religious fanaticism which can be very destructive Drawing on the work of various contemporary relational theorists within psychoanalysis this book develops a psychoanalytically informed theory of the transforming and terror producing effects of religious experience It discusses the question of whether or not if idealisation is the cause of many of the destructive acts done in the name of religion there can be vital religion without idealisation This is the first book to address the nature of religion and its capacity to sponsor both terrorism and transformation in terms of contemporary relational psychoanalytic theory It will be invaluable to students and practitioners of psychoanalysis psychotherapy psychology and religious studies and to others interested in the role of religion in the lives of individuals and societies Evolutionary Processes in the Natural History of Religion Hansjörg Hemminger, 2021-09-22

The study of religion by the humanities and social sciences has become receptive for an evolutionary perspective Some proposals model the evolution of religion in Darwinian terms or construct a synergy between biological and non Darwinian processes The results however have not yet become truly interdisciplinary The biological theory of evolution in form of the Extended Evolutionary Synthesis EES is only sparsely represented in theories published so far by scholars of religion Therefore this book reverses the line of view and asks how their results assort with evolutionary biology How can the subject area religion integrated into behavioral biology How is theory building affected by the asymmetry between the scarce empirical knowledge of prehistoric religion and the body of knowledge about extant and historic religions How does hominin evolution in general relate to the evolution of religion Are there evolutionary pre adaptations Subsequent versions of evolutionary biology from the original Darwinism to EES are used in interdisciplinary constructs Can they be integrated into a comprehensive theory The biological concept most often used is co evolution in form of a gene culture co evolution However the term denotes a process different from biological co evolution Important EES concepts do not appear in present models of religious evolution e g neutral evolution evolutionary drift evolutionary constraints etc How to include them into an interdisciplinary approach Does the cognitive science of religion CSR harmonize with behavioral biology and the brain sciences Religion as part of human culture is supported by a complex multi level behavioral system How can it be modeled scientifically The book addresses graduate students and researchers concerned about the scientific study of religion and biologist interested in interdisciplinary theory building in the field The Parliamentary Debates Great Britain.
