and social institutions This raises the question of how much modes of representation and specific types of sign systems mobilized to construct them contribute to reference Semioticians have argued that sign systems are not merely passive media for expressing preconceived ideas but actively contribute to meaning Sign systems are culturally loaded with meaning stemming from previous practical applications and social traditions of applications In new local contexts of application they not only transfer stabilized meaning but also can be used as active resources to add new significance and modify previous meaning This view is supported by several analyses presented in this volume Sign systems can be implemented like tools that are manipulated and superposed with other types of signs to forge new representations The mode of representation made possible by applying and manipulating specific types of representational tools such as diagrammatic rather than mathematical representations or Berzelian formulas rather than verbal language contributes to meaning and forges fine grained differentiations between scientists concepts Taken together the essays contained in this volume give us a multifaceted picture of the broad variety of modes of representation in nineteenth century and twentieth century laboratory sciences of the way scientists juxtaposed and integrated various representations and of their pragmatic use as tools in scientific and industrial practice Philosophical Magazine ,1928 Journal of the Chemical Society Chemical Society (Great Britain),1923 Titles of chemical papers in British and foreign journals included in Quarterly journal v 1 12 Journal of the Chemical Society ,1923 Science Abstracts ,1929 British Chemical Abstracts ,1929 An Introductory Guide to EC Competition Law and Practice Valentine Korah,1994 Transactions of the International Astronomical Union , British Abstracts ,1926 British Chemical and Physiological Abstracts ,1929 Molecular Spectra in Gases National Research Council (U.S.).
