Martin, 2021-04-06 Even after a rise in gay and Black representation and production on TV in the 1990s the sitcom became a generic closet restricting Black gay characters with narrative tropes Drawing from 20 interviews with credited episode writers key show runners and Black gay men The Generic Closet situates Black cast sitcoms as a unique genre that uses Black gay characters in service of the series heterosexual main cast Alfred L Martin Jr argues that the Black community is considered to be antigay due to misrepresentation by shows that aired during the family viewing hour and that were written for the imagined traditional Black family Martin considers audience reception industrial production practices and authorship to unpack the claim that Black gay characters are written into Black cast sitcoms such as Moesha Good News and Let's Stay Together in order to closet Black gayness By exploring how systems of power produce ideologies about Black gayness The Generic Closet deconstructs the concept of a monolithic Black audience and investigates whether this generic closet still exists The Synchronized Society Randall Patnode, 2023-03-17 The Synchronized Society traces the history of the synchronous broadcast experience of the twentieth century and the transition to the asynchronous media that dominate in the twenty first century with particular attention to the rise and fall of the schedule and the water cooler conversations that accompanied it Television and New Media Jennifer Gillan, 2010-10-18 Television and New Media introduces students to the ways that new media technologies have transformed contemporary television production distribution and reception practices Drawing upon recent examples including Lost 24 and Heroes this book closely examines the ways that television programming has changed with the influx of new media transforming nearly every TV series into a franchise whose on air online and on mobile elements are created simultaneously and held together through transmedia storytelling This book is essential for understanding how creative and industrial forces have worked together in the new media age to transform the way we watch TV Television Brandcasting Jennifer Gillan, 2014-11-20 Television Brandcasting examines U S television's utility as a medium for branded storytelling It investigates the current and historical role that television content promotion and hybrids of the two have played in disseminating brand messaging and influencing consumer decision making Juxtaposing the current period of transition with that of the 1950s 1960s Jennifer Gillan outlines how in each era new technologies unsettled entrenched business models an emergent viewing platform threatened to undermine an established one and content providers worried over the behavior of once dependable audiences The anxieties led to storytelling promotion and
