reason for this feeling of isolation and alienation Could it be that it stems from the nature of work or the workplace interacting alone with a computer screen or the rules and laws governing interpersonal relations of people living in communities a don t touch me society or sometimes over reliance on passive forms of entertainment which connects people to the medium but disconnects people from each other Is there any metaphor for the new problem situation facing people in our modern industrial society namely alone and lonely You may have heard of the story of the famous shipwrecked sailor Robinson Crusoe book by Daniel Defoe marooned all by himself on an uncharted desert island Who made the best of his situation by building things to satisfy all his physical economic needs Much like we have built an economy that satisfies all our physical needs Crusoe did not stop there he went on to satisfy his spiritual needs by noting all the marvels of nature and narrow escapes from storms that made him believe that providence was on his side converting him to Christianity Then providence did him another good turn A cannibal by the name of Man Friday was fortuitously left on the island by an accident of fate and Robinson now had a companion whom he educated into Christianity from his heathen uncivilized ways The functional role that Man Friday fulfilled for Robinson his best friend in many ways bears a resemblance to the the role of pets especially that most loyal of pets the dog play as friends for people in isolated modern society If Man Friday was Robinson Crusoe s loyal best friend then could we not with justification say that for people esp isolated ones dogs likewise serve as man s best friends and loyal companions Thus our need to love and be loved even when we are denied the real thing a person to call our own has a way of going underground and finding the next best substitute for the real thing which oftener than not turns out to be a beloved pet s Dog may not be quite as desirable as a human partner but given that so many people have no human partners dog has in effect become man s best friend It is to be hoped that we humans reciprocate by also being dog s best friend Knowing that genuine love is always a two way street
