Handbook of Quantitative Criminology Alex R. Piquero, David Weisburd, 2009-12-16 Quantitative criminology has certainly come a long way since I was rst introduced to a largely qualitative criminology some 40 years ago when I was recruited to lead a task force on science and technology for the President s Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice At that time criminology was a very limited activity depending almost exclusively on the Uniform Crime Reports UCR initiated by the FBI in 1929 for measurement of crime based on victim reports to the police and on police arrests A ty cal mode of analysis was simple bivariate correlation Marvin Wolfgang and colleagues were making an important advance by tracking longitudinal data on arrests in Philadelphia an innovation that was widely appreciated And the eld was very small I remember attending my rst meeting of the American Society of Criminology in about 1968 in an anteroom at New York University there were about 25-30 people in attendance mostly sociologists with a few lawyers thrown in That Society today has over 3 000 members mostly now drawn from criminology which has established its own clear identity but augmented by a wide variety of disciplines that include statisticians economists demographers and even a few engineers This Handbook provides a remarkable testimony to the growth of that eld Following the maxim that if you can t measure it you can t understand it we have seen the early dissatisfaction with the UCR replaced by a wide variety of new approaches to measuring crime victimization and offending

Permutation Statistical Methods for Criminology and Criminal Justice Kenneth J. Berry, Janis E. Johnston, Michael A. Long, Paul

Stretesky, Michael J. Lynch, 2025-08-11 This book takes a unique approach to explaining permutation statistical methods for advanced undergraduate students graduate students faculty researchers and other professionals interested in the areas of criminology or criminal justice The book integrates permutation statistical methods with a wide range of classical statistical methods It opens with a comparison of two models of statistical inference the classical population model espoused by J Neyman and E Pearson and the permutation model first introduced by R A Fisher and E J G Pitman Numerous comparisons of permutation and classical statistical methods are illustrated with examples from criminology and criminal justice and supplemented with a variety of R scripts for ease of computation The text follows the general outline of an introductory textbook in statistics with chapters on central tendency variability one sample tests two sample tests matched pairs tests completely randomized analysis of variance randomized blocks analysis of variance simple linear regression and correlation and the analysis of goodness of fit and contingency Unlike classical statistical methods permutation statistical methods do not rely on theoretical distributions avoid the usual assumptions of normality and homogeneity depend solely on the observed data and do not require random sampling making permutation statistical methods ideal for analyzing criminology and criminal justice databases Permutation methods are relatively new in that it took modern computing power to make them available to those working in criminology and criminal justice research The book contains detailed examples of permutation analyses Each analysis is paired with a conventional analysis for example a permutation test of the difference between experimental and control groups is contrasted with Student's two sample t test An added feature is the inclusion of multiple historical notes on the origin and development of both parametric and conventional tests and measures Designed for an audience with a basic statistical background and a strong interest in parametric and non parametric statistics the book can easily serve as a textbook for undergraduate and graduate students in criminology criminal justice or sociology as well as serving as a research source for faculty researchers and other professionals in the area of criminology No statistical training beyond a first course in statistics is required but some knowledge of or interest in criminology or criminal justice is assumed
