Ruins in the Landscape Braddon Andrew Smith,1990 Ruins in a Landscape Stuart Piggott,1976 The Sublime Andrew Ashfield,Peter de Bolla,1996-08-15 This collection of texts on the Sublime provides the historical context for the foundation and discussion of one of the most important aesthetic debates of the Enlightenment The significance of the Sublime in the eighteenth century ranged across a number of fields literary criticism empirical psychology political economy connoisseurship landscape design and aesthetics painting and the fine arts and moral philosophy and has continued to animate aesthetic and theoretical debates to this day However the unavailability of many of the crucial texts of the founding tradition has resulted in a conception of the Sublime often limited to the definitions of its most famous theorist Edmund Burke Andrew Ashfield and Peter de Bolla s anthology which includes an introduction and notes to each entry offers students and scholars ready access to a much deeper and more complex tradition of writings on the Sublime many of them never before printed in modern editions The Splendor of Ruins in French Landscape Painting, 1630-1800 Stephen Donald Borys,T. Barton Thurber,Alan Wintermute,Allen Memorial Art Museum,Museum of Fine Arts, Houston,2005 The Aesthetics of Ruins Robert Ginsberg,2004 This book constructs a theory of ruins that celebrates their vitality and unity in aesthetic experience Its argument draws upon over 100 illustrations prepared in 40 countries Ruins flourish as matter form function incongruity site and symbol Ruin underlies cultural values in cinema literature and philosophy Finally ruin guides meditations upon our mortality and endangered world Journey through Landscape in Seventeenth-Century Holland: The Haarlem Print Series and Dutch Identity , The sets of landscape etchings produced in the second decade of the seventeenth century by Claes Jansz Visscher Esaias van den Velde Willem Buytewech and Jan van de Velde drew on and contributed to a print culture that played a key role in defining Dutch landscape Examination of these printed landscape series as part of a wide ranging print culture underscores the consistent interrelationship of landscape history and politics To varying degrees the contemporaneous descriptive geographies histories allegorical tableaux didactic prints and poetic anthologies considered in this study provide parallels for the prints serial structure journey theme and commemorative motifs Moreover as part of a wider enterprise of Dutch self definition they provide cultural guidelines for the interpretation of landscape in prints and paintings Levesque s study of the Dutch seventeenth century experience of place is two tiered She addresses the journey through landscape as an interpretive framework the spatial structure of knowledge the benefits of travel from the point of view of humanists and the growth of a Dutch national self consciousness expressed through landscape She also provides a close reading of the structure and motifs in the print series of Claes Jansz Visscher Esaias van den Velde Willem Buytewech and Jan van de Velde Ruins in the Landscape Kristin Defer,2015 Ruins are a physical representation of what happens after death They offer few answers but force contemplation of existence and the unknown in their decay Ruins make one question the physical and spiritual environment in which they live These places in our landscapes have developed a quality of depth and fascination that have transformed many of their sites into attractions People are drawn to these ruins of the past and the allure of ruins can influence the entire design method of the site Riverview Hospital in Coquitlam British Columbia was a place of tranquility and healing home to thousands of patients over its 90 years in operation Once a holistic mental health treatment facility including an arboreum botanical garden community center and economically profitable programs the state of mental health changed to the point that rendered the campus of Riverview unnecessary closing in 2012 The Riverview Hospital site presents a unique opportunity to dissect its built and botanical ruins searching for a process that reveals the narrative of the place while providing an environment that can captivate visitors provoke memories and emotions and invites people to experience the ruins in the landscape
