Agger, 2012-08-06 This book addresses the relationship between the body and society in a fast food society. Agger focuses on issues of food, exercise, work, dieting and eating disorders, fashion, bariatric and cosmetic surgery and health. He addresses the dilemma that we have ample access to abundant calories but lead lifestyles and have jobs that for the most part do not enable us to expend those calories. He proposes solutions both individual and structural that involve re-orienting ourselves to exercise as play. The book can be used in introductory sociology, social problems, work sociology, of sport, gender, health and illness. The goal of this new unique Series is to offer readable, teachable thinking frames on today's social problems and social issues by leading scholars, all in short 60 page or shorter formats and available for view on <http://routledge.customgateway.com/routledge-social-issues.html>. For instructors teaching a wide range of courses in the social sciences, the Routledge Social Issues Collection now offers the best of both worlds: originally written short texts that provide overviews to important social issues as well as teachable excerpts from larger works previously published by Routledge and other presses. RUN

Bannister shattered the illusion with half a second to spare in May 1954. These essays look at the background of Bannister's achievement and the meaning that was ascribed to it by the media and the public at large, drawing on an array of interdisciplinary and international influences to unpick the legend surrounding an historic moment in our social and sporting past.

Running in the Zone Steve King, Dan Cumming, 2006-09-01. Twenty-six runners ranging in age from 46 to 76 share their secrets, motivations, and experiences in the fields of running. All are active runners and many presently hold world age class records. Some have held world records and have achieved world level performances at the Olympics, Commonwealth, and European games. But Running in the Zone isn't about super achievement; it is about getting the most out of the running experience regardless of age or even ability. This book is for anyone interested in running and running-related sports, whether they are elite age class runners wanting to keep up performances or newcomers considering taking up running in their middle or even advanced years. Many of the contributors didn't start running until they were over 40, and some didn't achieve their best personal performances until they were in their 50s. You will meet men and women who have a life-long interest in running as well as those who took it up as personal challenges. All are inspiring in one way or another and have something valuable to teach, not necessarily about running per se but rather personal satisfaction, giving back through voluntarism, and commitment to a goal or purpose. The book was the idea of editors Steve King and Dan Cumming and has come together through Steve's contacts in the world of running and Dan's love of running and editorial ability to pull the best out of a story. Both Steve and Dan have a long-term relationship with the sport. They both perceived that a growing number of older runners are involved in the running and that Running in the Zone would answer many of the needs of this group of active men and
