I. INTRODUCTION

Development is a necessary aspect of societies, indeed any society without development could be said to be static. Hence all societies are dynamic. Development as a term has been defined by many writers with different views: -

Abdu (1982) viewed development as synonymous with economic growth measured in aggregate terms. Abubakar, (1981) sees development as qualitative improvement in all societies and in all groups of individuals within societies. He asserts that all men must surely have enough goods in order to be men and to develop themselves.

As defined by forest, (1981) development is creating the condition for the realization of human personality. He noted that development has to be marked with reduction in poverty, unemployment and inequality a high level of nutrition, high health standard, low infant mortality rate etc.

From above definitions of development, it can be deduced that development is virtually changing the life of an individual, group of people or community in terms of social amenities, such as good health, good road, adequate and clean water, education etc.

Due to the lack of a well articulated programme a rural development, there has been much variation in the administration and performance of rural development programme in Nigeria. Efforts made by successive Nigerian governments have been at its worse more of propaganda. Indeed it is safe to say that Nigeria has no rural development programme until 1976 when development for rural development was created. Before this time the governments idea of ploughing back some revenue to the rural sector was through: large sales plantation of co-coc, rubber, oil palm, subsidy approach which allows the public sector to provide infrastructure which indeed transport irrigation facilities etc and that of agrarian called reform in a package called "Integrated Rural Development" (IRD) (Agwuobi, 1993). As he further stressed, great damage was inflicted by financial agencies that persuaded Nigeria into multi-sectorial development programme under the pretence of integrated rural development programme (IRDP) even though Nigeria has often do not have a well defined rural development strategy.

Rural development has not been centrally guided; instead of institutionalizing rural development ministry the federal government has rationed the development programmes on several ministries and departments at both federal and state levels. The crucial role of local government system as a link between government and the rural people remains unrealizable. These lapses have prompted a continued search for a new strategy for rural development in Nigeria (Oke, 2010).

Evaluation of rural development in Nigeria is incomplete without the contribution of international organisations such as food and agriculture organization (FAO) as the leading agency, international labour organization (ILO) United Nation Education, Social and Cultural organization (UNESCO), United Nations (UN) World health Organization (WHO) and World Bank. These organizations have enhanced Nigeria rural

Contemporary Development Issues in Nigeria Olayinka Akanle, A.O. Olutayo, A.O. Omobowale, 2015-04-01 Africa today confronts and is known for daunting developmental challenges despite the abundant human and material resources and significant global development assistance A number of issues have been identified as causes of the continent's poor development performance However a number of these implicated issues have been insufficiently unaccounted for and the majority of existing analysis on them is too generic and misinformed Against this background this book uses Nigeria as an example to contribute knowledge and informed research to the wider African continent Nigeria is the most populous nation in Africa and is one of the continent's most resource endowed countries but despite this it is one of the poorest countries in the entire world While many studies have examined the country in depth its continued development complications and its paradoxical status on the world stage suggest that there is still a need to better understand the country Even though the issues of Nigeria are engaged with directly in this book the findings have implications and relevance for the rest of the continent and many other developing countries in general As such this book will be of particular interest to all development students scholars practitioners and policy makers especially those interested in the sustainable development of Africa both now and in the future

Indigenous Land Management in West Africa Kathleen M. Baker, 2000 The success of rural development schemes in Africa particularly those involving land is heavily dependent on understanding the local ecology Any farmer knows this yet rarely has development project design catered adequately for the vicissitudes of the African environment Although environmental unpredictability was recognized in the temperate zone by the mid nineteenth century the ecological theory which was subsequently developed and most widely accepted was based on concepts of norms and equilibria History has shown that the application of such ecological assumptions to African environments is wholly inappropriate This book argues that many methods used by West African smallholder farmers and pastoralists are properly adapted to the region s unpredictable physical environment Field examples from the semi arid and humid zones demonstrate the nature of environmental variability and the skill of indigenous farmers and pastoralists in exploiting this It is thus argued that development planners should where possible model development schemes on the more successful ecologically sound methods of indigenous land management State and Society in Nigeria Gavin Williams,2019-04-15 The first edition of State and Society in Nigeria published in 1980 was and remains a dominant influence in teaching research policy and practice of state society relations in Nigeria for more than a generation The volume of essays has remained one of the most cited in the field testimony to its enduring content and perspective as well as the beauty accessibility and clarity of its language This new edition revisits extends and reconsiders aspects of the first edition in light of developments in the literature since 1980 and offers new insights and interpretations on issues of political economy politics and sociology such as the countrys Civil War 1967 1970 the political economy of oil debt and democratization and the complexities and ethnic identities and rivalries and religious accommodation and conflict and of the multiple ways in which they intersect with one another Issues on Development ,1985 New Dimensions in African Linguistics and Languages Paul A.
