The Food Section Kimberly Wilmut Voss, 2014-04-24 Food blogs are everywhere today but for generations information and opinions about food were found in the food sections of newspapers in communities large and small Until the early 1970s these sections were housed in the women's pages of newspapers where women could hold an authoritative voice The food editors often a mix of trained journalist and home economist reported on everything from nutrition news to features on the new chef in town They wrote recipes and solicited ideas from readers The sections reflected the trends of the time and the cooks of the community The editors were local celebrities judging cooking contests and getting calls at home about how to prepare a Thanksgiving turkey They were consumer advocates and reporters for food safety and nutrition They helped make James Beard and Julia Child household names as the editors wrote about their television appearances and reviewed their cookbooks These food editors laid the foundation for the food community that Nora Ephron described in her classic 1968 essay The Food Establishment and eventually led to the food communities of today Included in the chapters are profiles of such food editors as Jane Nickerson Jeanne Voltz and Ruth Ellen Church who were unheralded pioneers in the field as well as Cecily Brownstone Poppy Cannon and Clementine Paddleford who are well known today an analysis of their work demonstrates changes in the country's culinary history The book concludes with a look at how the women's pages folded at the same time that home economics saw its field transformed and with thoughts about the foundation that these women laid for the food journalism of today

Bostonians and restaurant goers the world over Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking Jessamyn Neuhaus, 2003-07-28 From the first edition of The Fannie Farmer Cookbook to the latest works by today's celebrity chefs cookbooks reflect more than just passing culinary fads As historical artifacts they offer a unique perspective on the cultures that produced them In Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking Jessamyn Neuhaus offers a perceptive and piquant analysis of the tone and content of American cookbooks published between the 1790s and the 1960s adroitly uncovering the cultural assumptions and anxieties particularly about women and domesticity they contain Neuhaus's in depth survey of these cookbooks questions the supposedly straightforward lessons about food preparation they imparted While she finds that cookbooks aimed to make readers mainly white middle class women into effective modern age homemakers who saw joy not drudgery in their domestic tasks she notes that the phenomenal popularity of Peg Bracken's 1960 cookbook The I Hate to Cook Book attests to the limitations of this kind of indoctrination At the same time she explores the proliferation of bachelor cookbooks aimed at the man in the kitchen and the biases they display about male and female abilities tastes and responsibilities Neuhaus also addresses the impact of World War II rationing on homefront cuisine the introduction of new culinary technologies gourmet sensibilities and ethnic foods into American kitchens and developments in the cookbook industry since the 1960s More than a history of the cookbook Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking provides an absorbing and enlightening account of gender and food in modern America Taste of the Nation Camille Bégin, 2016-06-15 During the Depression the Federal Writers Project FWP dispatched scribes to sample the fare at group eating events like church dinners political barbecues and clambakes Its America Eats project sought nothing less than to sample and report upon the tremendous range of foods eaten across the United States Camille Bégin shapes a cultural and sensory history of New Deal era eating from the FWP archives From ravioli the diminutive derbies of pastries the crowns stuffed with a well seasoned paste to barbeque seasoning that integrated salt black pepper dried red chili powder garlic oregano cumin seed and cayenne pepper while tomatoes green chili peppers onions and olive oil made up the sauce Bégin describes in mouth watering detail how Americans tasted their food They did so in ways that varied and varied widely depending on race ethnicity class and region Bégin explores how likes and dislikes cravings and disgust operated within local sensory economies that she culls from the FWP's vivid descriptions visual cues culinary expectations recipes and accounts of restaurant meals She illustrates how nostalgia prescriptive gender ideals and racial stereotypes shaped how the FWP was able to frame regional food cultures as American Inside the California Food Revolution Joyce Goldstein, 2013-09-06 In this authoritative and immensely readable insider's account celebrated cookbook author and former chef Joyce Goldstein traces the development of California cuisine from its formative years in the 1970s to 2000 when farm to table foraging and fusion cooking had become part of the national vocabulary Interviews with almost two hundred chefs purveyors artisans winemakers and food writers bring to life an approach to cooking grounded in passion bold innovation and a dedication to flavor first Goldstein explains how the counterculture movement in the West gave rise to a restaurant culture characterized by open kitchens women in leadership positions and a surprising number of chefs and artisanal food producers who lacked formal training The new cuisine challenged the conventional kitchen hierarchy and French dominance in fine dining leading to a more egalitarian and informal food scene In weaving Goldstein s views on California food culture with profiles of those who played a part in its development from Alice Waters to Bill Niman to Wolfgang Puck Inside the California Food Revolution demonstrates that while fresh produce and locally sourced ingredients are iconic in California what transforms these elements into a unique cuisine is a distinctly Western culture of openness creativity and collaboration Engagingly written and full of captivating anecdotes this book shows how the inspirations that emerged in California went on to transform the experience of eating throughout the United States and the world

Making Slow Food Fast in California Cuisine Victor W. Geraci, 2017-03-02 This book follows the development of industrial agriculture in California and its influence on both regional and national eating habits Early California politicians and entrepreneurs envisioned agriculture as a solution to the food needs of the expanding industrial nation The state s climate geography vast expanses of land water and immigrant workforce when coupled with university research and governmental assistance provided a model for agribusiness In a short time the San Francisco Bay Area became a hub for guaranteeing Americans access to a consistent quantity of quality foods To this end California agribusiness played a major role in national food policies and subsequently produced a bifurcated California Cuisine that sustained both Slow and Fast Food proponents Problems arose as mid twentieth century social activists battled the unresponsiveness of government agencies to corporate greed food safety and environmental sustainability By utilizing multidisciplinary literature and oral histories the book illuminates a more balanced look at how a California Cuisine embraced Slow Food Made Fast
