Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs

Once upon a time, a princess named Snow White lived in a castle with her father, the King, and her stepmother, the Queen. Her father had always said to his daughter that she must be fair to everyone at court. Said he, "People come here to the castle when they have a problem. They need the ruler to make a fair decision. Nothing is more important than to be fair."

The Queen, Snow White's stepmother, knew how much this meant to her husband. At the first chance, she went to her magic mirror. "Mirror, mirror, on the wall," said the Queen. "Who is the fairest of them all?"

"Snow White is the fairest of them all!" said the Magic Mirror.

"What?!" yelled the Queen. "No one is more fair than I! The Queen must have the best of everything - everyone knows that. What could be more fair than that?"

"Snow White is the fairest of them all!" repeated the Magic Mirror.

"What do you know - you're a mirror!" roared the Queen. And she stormed off.

Still, the Queen was bothered. So bothered was she that the Queen decided to be rid of the girl, once and for all.

Copyright Office, 1977 Working Memory Marlene Kadar, 2015-07-31 Working Memory Women and Work in World War II speaks to the work women did during the war the labour of survival resistance and collaboration and the labour of recording representing and memorializing these wartime experiences The contributors follow their subjects tracks and deepen our understanding of the experiences from the imprints left behind These efforts are a part of the making of history and when the process is as personal as many of our contributors research has been it is also the working of memory The implication here is that memory is intimate and that the layering of narrative fragments that recovery involves brings us in touching distance to ourselves These are not the stories of the brave little woman at home they are stories of the woman who calculated the main chance and took up with the Nazi soldier or who eagerly dropped the apron at the door and picked up a paintbrush or who brazenly bargained for her life and her mother's with the most feared of tyrants These are stories of courage and sometimes of compromise not the courage of bravado and hype and big guns but rather the courage of hard choices and sacrifices that make sense of the life given even when that life seems only madness Working Memory brings scholarly attention to the roles of women in World War II that have been hidden masked undervalued or forgotten

Mary Y. Ayers, 2014-06-11 Winner of the 2004 Grady Award from the National Association for the Advancement of

Psychoanalysis The issue of shame has become a central topic for many writers and therapists in recent years but it is debatable how much real understanding of this powerful and pervasive emotion we have achieved Mother Infant Attachment and Psychoanalysis argues that shame can develop during the first six months of life through an unreflected look in the mother's eyes and that this shame is then internalised by the infant and reverberates through its later life The author further expands on this concept of the look through a powerful and extensive study of the concept of the Evil Eye an enduring universal belief that eyes have the power to inflict injury Finally she presents ways of healing shame within a clinical setting and provides a fascinating analysis of the role of eye contact in the therapeutic encounter This book brings together a unique blend of theoretical interpretations of shame with clinical studies and integrates major concepts from psychoanalysis Jungian analysis developmental psychology and anthropology The result is a broad understanding of shame and a real understanding of why it may underlie a wide range of clinical disorders
