Printing and Painting the News in Victorian London Andrea Korda, 2017-07-05 Printing and Painting the News in Victorian London offers a fresh perspective on Social Realism by contextualizing it within the burgeoning new media environment of Victorian London Paintings labelled as Social Realist by Luke Fildes Frank Holl and Hubert Herkomer are frequently considered to typify the sentimental Victorian genre painting that quickly became outdated with the development of modernism Yet this book argues that the paintings must be considered as the result of the new experiences of modernity the urban poverty that the paintings represent and most importantly the advent of the mass produced illustrated news Fildes Holl and Herkomer worked for The Graphic a publication launched in 1869 as a rival to the dominant Illustrated London News The artists' illustrations which featured the growing problem of urban poverty became the basis for large scale paintings that provoked controversy among their contemporaries and later became known as Social Realism This first in depth study of The Graphic and Social Realism uses the approach of media archaeology to unearth the modernity of these works showing that they engaged with the changing notions of objectivity and immediacy that nineteenth century new media cultivated In doing so this book proposes an alternative trajectory for the development of modernism that allows for a richer understanding of nineteenth century visual culture

Painting the Heavens Eileen Reeves, 1997 The remarkable astronomical discoveries made by Galileo with the new telescope in 1609 led to his famous disputes with philosophers and religious authorities most of whom found their doctrines threatened by his evidence for Copernicus's heliocentric universe In this book Eileen Reeves brings an art historical perspective to this story as she explores the impact of Galileo's heavenly observations on painters of the early seventeenth century Many seventeenth century painters turned to astronomical pastimes and to the depiction of new discoveries in their work yet some of these findings imposed controversial changes in their use of religious iconography For example Galileo's discovery of the moon's rough topography and the reasons behind its secondary light meant rethinking the imagery surrounding the Virgin Mary's Immaculate Conception which had long been represented in paintings by the appearance of a smooth incandescent moon By examining a group of paintings by early modern artists all interested in Galileo's evidence for a Copernican system Reeves not only traces the influence of science on painting in terms of optics and content but also reveals the painters in a conflict between artistic depiction and dogmatic representation Reeves offers a close analysis of seven works by Lodovico Cigoli Peter Paul Rubens Francisco Pacheco and Diego Velázquez She places these artists at the center of the astronomical debate showing that both before and after the invention of the telescope the proper evaluation of phenomena such as moon spots and the aurora borealis was commonly considered the province of the painter Because these scientific hypotheses were complicated by their connection to Catholic doctrine Reeves examines how the relationship between science and art and their mutual production of knowledge and authority must themselves be seen in a broader context of theological and political struggle

Painting the Middle East Ann Zwicker Kerr, 2002-11-01 We each paint our lives and frame our experiences of the world in a distinctive way for reasons that we cannot always understand writes Ann Kerr in her book The watercolors that fill its pages are an expression of the author's affection and fascination for the Middle East painted during her many sojourns there starting in the mid fifties and continuing to the present time The paintings are unashamedly romantic and reveal nothing of the turmoil going on in the region during the last half century that has brought personal tragedy to so many including the author and her family They are almost the antithesis of such events The paintings represent hours snatched away from the business of everyday life periods of time spent in nature amidst the sun washed relics of the past where evidence of old cruelties and folly have faded away or been covered with sand and weeds The eighty nine watercolors and photographs are woven together with a brief narrative that brings the context in which they were painted or photographed to the reader The book is divided into the four areas where the author painted Lebanon North Africa Egypt and the Holy Land

Painting the Town Red Bob Dent, 2018-03-20 The intensely political cultural production that erupted during Hungary's short-lived Soviet Republic of 1919 encompassed music, art, literature, film and theatre. Painting the Town Red is the little-known history of these developments. The book opens with an overview of the political context in Hungary after the First World War and how the Soviet Republic emerged in the chaotic months which followed the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Dual Monarchy. It looks at the subsequent roles during the Soviet Republic of artists, film-makers, actors, musicians and writers and the attitude of the newly established People's Commissariat for Education and Culture in which the future internationally renowned Marxist Gyorgy Lukacs played a leading role. At its centre are the questions why did so many prominent people in the arts world participate in the Soviet Republic and why did their initial enthusiasm later subside. Painting the Town Red is an important contribution to the lively debate about the interaction between art and politics.

Painting the Prehistoric Body in Late Nineteenth-Century France Sharon Parker, 2018-11-19 In late nineteenth-century France when Charles Darwin's theories of evolution had finally begun to permeate French culture and society, several academic artists turned to a relatively new sub-genre of history painting: the prehistoric-themed subject. This artistic interest in Darwin's theories was manifested as paintings and sculptures of prehistoric humanity engaged in physical conflict with each other or other animals struggling for food or hunting. All nineteenth-century popular understandings of survival of the fittest. This book examines how this sub-genre captured the imagination of French Salon painters from the 1880s to early 1900s, in particular that of Fernand Cormon (1845-1924), one of the foremost academic painters during the final quarter of the nineteenth century. A central argument of this book concerns the unique interpretation of prehistoric humanity that Cormon visualized in his paintings. While the vast majority of prehistoric-themed images made by his Salon colleagues focused on violence, combat and sexual conquest, Cormon's paintings depict a conflict-free humanity in which collaboration and cooperation dominate rather than physical struggle. This study probes the French intellectual understanding and appropriation of Darwin's theories and considers how the French mis-translation of The Origin of Species by Clément Auguste Royer, the first French translator of the text, along with Neo-Lamarckism and republican ideology in Third Republic France may have collectively shaped Cormon's representation of early humanity. The art press overwhelmingly favored Cormon's visualization of the prehistoric world over that of his Salon peers Through extended analysis of the art criticism concerning Cormon's work Shalon Parker argues that critics very clear preference for Cormon's paintings was rooted in their awareness that he utilized the sub genre of the prehistoric as a forum in which to reimagine and revive academic figurative painting at a time when the critical reception of Salon art had reached its nadir Additionally this study provides a broad overview of the visual models in particular the anthropological and ethnographic texts and imagery most readily available to Cormon as sources for shaping his vision of the prehistoric world

Painting the Cannon's Roar Thomas Tolley, 2017-07-05 From c 1750 to c 1810 the paths of music history and the history of painting converged with lasting consequences The publication of Newton's Opticks at the start of the eighteenth century gave a scientific basis to the analogy between sight and sound allowing music and the visual arts to be defined more closely in relation to one another This was also a period which witnessed the emergence of a larger and increasingly receptive audience for both music and the visual arts an audience which potentially included all social strata The development of this growing public and the commercial potential that it signified meant that for the first time it became possible for a contemporary artist to enjoy an international reputation Nowhere is this better illustrated than in the career of Joseph Haydn Although this phenomenon defies conventional modes of study the book shows how musical pictorialism became a major creative force in popular culture Haydn the most popular living cultural personality of the period proved to be the key figure in advancing the new relationship The connections between the composer and his audiences and leading contemporary artists including Tiepolo Mengs Kauffman Goya David Messerschmidt Louthenbourg Canova Copley Fuseli Reynolds Gillray and West are examined here for the first time By the early nineteenth century populism was beginning to be regarded with scepticism and disdain Mozart was the modern Raphael Beethoven the modern Michelangelo Haydn however had no clear parallel in the accepted canon of Renaissance art Yet his recognition that ordinary people had a desire to experience simultaneous aural and visual stimulation was not altogether lost finding future exponents in Wagner and later still in the cinematic arts
