The Middle Paleolithic Harold L. Dibble, Paul Mellars, 2003-01-14 Papers originally presented at a symposium on the Middle Paleolithic of Europe and the Near East organized as part of the annual meeting of the Society for American Archaeology in the spring of 1989 Paleolithic archaeology has entered a period in which new interpretations based on new finds and revised ideas concerning previously known material are competing with traditional interpretations There is an urgent need for continued dialogue among Paleolithic scholars exemplified by these papers Symposium Series IV University Museum Monograph 78

Projectile Technology Heidi Knecht, 2013-06-29 Artifacts linked to projectile technologies traditionally have provided the foundations for time space systematics and cultural historic frameworks in archaeological research having to do with foragers With the shift in archaeological research objectives to processual interpretations projectile technologies continue to receive marked attention but with an emphasis on the implications of variability in such areas as design function and material as they relate to the broader questions of human adaptation The reason that this particular domain of foraging technology persists as an important focus of research I think comes in three parts A projectile technology was a crucial part of most foragers strategies for survival it was functionally specific and it generally was fabricated from durable materials likely to be detected archaeologically Being fundamental to meat acquisition and the principal source of calories projectile technologies were typically afforded greater time investment formal modification and elaboration of attributes than others Moreover such technologies tend to display greater standardization because of constraints on size morphology and weight that are inherent to the delivery system The elaboration of attributes and standardization of form gives projectile technologies time and space sensitivity that is greater than most other foraging technologies And such sensitivity is immensely valuable in archaeological research

The Azraq Basin Project Andrew Garrard, Brian Byrd, 2013-11-01 The natural arc of resource rich land which forms the Fertile Crescent of South West Asia is regarded as the earliest centre of village based farming in the world and has been the focus of much of our understanding of the transition from Epipalaeolithic hunter gathers to Neolithic farmers Beyond the Fertile Crescent is the first volume of the Azraq Project a large scale archaeological and palaeoenvironmental survey and excavation project undertaken between 1982 and 1989 in the ecologically diverse sub region of the Azraq Basin in north central Jordan an area rich in Palaeolithic and Neolithic archaeology Beginning with an overview to the Project aims a detailed analysis of past and present environments and land use and the history of excavation in the Basin Beyond the Fertile Crescent explores the geology stratigraphy and dating of the Late Palaeolithic sites and provides a detailed description of the technology and typology of the lithic assemblages from the sites These are then compared with those from the wider Levant in order to explore possible links between technological traditions and social groups in order to understand the evidence for settlement strategies across the region

Stone Tools in Transition: From Hunter-Gatherers to Farming Societies in the Near East Borrell, Ferran, Ibáñez, Juan José, Molist, Miquel, 2013 This volume compiles the papers presented at the seventh edition of the Conference on PPN Chipped and Ground Stone Industries of the Fertile Crescent held in Barcelona from 14 to 17 February 2012 This series of conferences workshops started nineteen years ago the first meeting was organised in Berlin in 1993 and is devoted to the study of the lithic record in the Pre Pottery Neolithic of the Near East and neighbouring regions The seventh of these conferences was organised by the Instituci Mil i Fontanals Consejo Superior de Investigaciones Científicas and the Prehistory Department Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona This volume includes a total number of 36 articles covering a wide range of topics and disciplines related to lithic studies in the Levant over a long chronological time span from the final stages of the Epipalaeolithic Natufian to the Halaf period The publication of the conference proceedings is thus an interesting synthesis of the current state of lithic studies on the Pre Pottery Neolithic of the Near East and consolidates this specific series of conferences as a key tool to maintain and stimulate the vitality of high quality research into the Near Eastern lithic record
