

A large group of people, mostly women and children, are gathered outdoors. They are wearing vibrant, colorful traditional Senegalese clothing, including patterned dresses and headwraps. The women are holding and carrying children. The background shows some trees and a building. The overall scene is a lively, communal gathering.

Non-Governmental Organizations and the State in Africa James G. Copestake,Kate Wellard,2024-11-01 This presents twenty specially commissioned case studies of farmer participatory approaches to agricultural innovation initiated by NGOs in Africa Beginning with a broad review of institutional activity at the grassroots the authors set the case material within the context of NGO relations with the State and their contribution to democratisation and the consolidation of rural civil society Specific questions are raised how good bad are NGOs at promoting technological innovation and addressing constraints to change in present agriculture how effective are NGOs at strengthening grassroots organizations and how do will donor pressures influence NGOs and their links to the State This title is part of a series on Non Governmental Organizations co ordinated by the Overseas Development Institute To complete this comprehensive review and critique there are two other regional case study volumes on Asia and Latin America and an overview volume Reluctant Partners World Bank Anne C. M. Salda,1995 Markets and States in Tropical Africa Robert H. Bates,2005-03-04 Most Africans live in rural areas and derive their incomes from farming but because African governments follow policies that are adverse to most farmers interests these countries fail to produce enough food to feed their populations Markets and States in Tropical Africa analyzes these and other paradoxical features of development in modern Africa and explores how governments have intervened and diverted resources from farmers to other sectors of society A classic of the field since its publication in 1981 this edition includes a new preface by the author
