Achieving Consistency in Sentencing Lyndon Harris, 2022-08-29 The Sentencing Council of England and Wales has as its core aim to promote consistency in sentencing with a developed system of appellate guidance at sentencing in addition to a narrative guidelines system which is now two decades old As such there is much to analyse and many lessons to be learned for England and Wales and other jurisdictions Consistency in sentencing is widely regarded to be an essential component of a fair sentencing system but what does consistency mean exactly In Achieving Consistency in Sentencing the author maintains that consistency incorporates both substantive and procedural elements focussing upon the proper application of principle The notion of comparing like cases is rejected as simplistic impractical and unprincipled Lyndon Harris argues that a more principled approach reconciles the tension between consistency and individualised justice which has been suggested to exist The author uses clear empirical evidence of inconsistency in sentencing to emphasize the crucial need for discretion during the sentencing exercise which he argues should be structured in a way that encourages sentences to be imposed in accordance with the principles underpinning the scheme while maintaining the ability to individualise sentences Using England and Wales as a case study this work analyses various methods of structuring discretion The latter part of the book examines the interplay between the primary givers of guidance Parliament the Court of Appeal Criminal Division and the

Sentencing Council and draws conclusions good and bad as to ways in which consistency can be achieved Lyndon Harris identifies lessons to be learned while pointing out the strengths and deficiencies in the various devices used to guide sentencing judges when they are required to exercise their discretion The book draws attention to the need for greater flexibility and structure while emphasising the work that needs to be done to address racial and gender inconsistencies in sentencing Thus while providing a theoretically sound critique of the concept this monograph is of direct practical relevance to those studying or practising in sentencing systems worldwide

Transforming International Criminal Justice Mark Findlay, Ralph Henham, 2005-06 This book sets out an agenda to transform international criminal trials and the delivery of international criminal justice to victim communities through collaboration of currently competing paradigms It reflects a transformation of thinking about the comparative analysis of the trial process and seeks to advance the boundaries of international criminal justice through wider access and inclusivity in an environment of rights protection Collaborative justice is advanced as providing the future context of international criminal trials The book's radical dimension is its argument for the harmonization of restorative and retributive justice within the international criminal trial The focus is initially on the trial process a key symbol of developing international styles of justice It examines theoretical models and political applications of criminal justice through detailed empirical analysis in order to explore the underlying relationship of theory and empirical study applying the outcome in theory testing and policy evaluation in several different jurisdictions The book injects a significant comparative dimension into the study of international criminal justice This is achieved through searching the traditional foundations of internationalism in justice by employing an original methodology to enable a multi dimensional exploration of contexts local regional and global so recognising the importance of difference within an agenda suggesting synthesis The book argues for a concept of international trial within a rights paradigm understood against different procedural traditions and practices and provides a detailed description of trials and trial decision making in various jurisdictions Transforming International Criminal Justice also sets out to develop effective research strategies as part of its interrogation of specific trial narratives and meanings in contemporary legal cultures Key themes are those of internationalisation fair trial and the exercise of discretion in justice resolutions sentencing in particular and the lay professional relationship and its dynamics Finally the book provides a searching critique of the relevance of existing criminology and legal sociology in relation to international criminal justice and speculates on trial transformation and the merger of retributive and restorative international criminal justice comparative analysis of the criminal trial process internationally argues for harmonization of retributive and restorative justice within the international criminal trial sets out an agenda to transform international criminal trials and the delivery of international criminal justice to victim communities

Exercising Discretion Loraine Gelsthorpe, Nicola Padfield, 2012-12-06 The exercise of discretion in the criminal justice system and related agencies often plays a key part in decisions which are made but definitions of discretion are not clear and despite widespread recognition of its importance there is much controversy on its nature and legitimacy This book seeks to explore the importance of discretion to an understanding of the nature of the making of justice in theory and practice taking as its starting point the wide discretionary powers wielded by many of the key players in the criminal justice and related systems It focuses on the core elements and contexts of discretion looking at the power ability authority and duties of individuals officials and organisations to decide select or interpret vague standards requirements or statutory uncertainties
