The Lost Words Pete May,2012-10-15 Philip Howard's legendary Lost Words column has been appearing weekly in The Times for many years wittily illuminating a raft of the most obscure esoteric words the English language has to offer At the same time his Word Watching puzzles have provided readers with the chance to pit their lexicographical skill against his tongue in cheek multiple choice conundrums This unique collection bringing together the very best of all these is a feast for word lovers Here we can lament the disappearance of words like accismus an insincere and feigned refusal of something that is earnestly desired and wonder why we ever thought we could do without zoilus a censorious malignant or envious critic And once we have completed our journey through the dictionary entries time has forgotten there's more fun to be had as we ponder whether having a tirrit means one is in possession of a trumpet throwing a fit or the proud owner of a type of bird and if the charge of being spissid is a comment on one's girth sobriety or resemblance to a javelin either literal or metaphorical Endlessly fascinating Lost Words continues Philip Howard's amusing and informative tour of words that enrich the English language and would otherwise have been lost forever Higher-grade English [by W.S. Dalglish]. By W.S. Dalglish philosophy and performing arts thus question what it means to be human from a posthumanist point of view and how the agency of non humans be they technology objects animals or other forms of being works on both an ontological and performative level The contributions in this volume brings together scholars dramaturgs and artists uniting their reflections on the consequences of the posthuman condition for creative practices spectatorship and knowledge Unmaking Waste Sarah Newman,2023-05-26 In Unmaking Waste Sarah Newman asks what happens when there are disagreements about what constitutes waste and what one should do with it both at singular moments in time for example when ideas about waste collide in emerging colonial contexts and across time such as between those who left things behind in the past and the archaeologists who recover them Newman examines ancient Mesoamerican understandings of waste Euro American perceptions of waste in New Spain and early modern European ideals of civility and Christian understandings of good and bad expressed metaphorically through cleanliness and filth These differing perceptions Newman argues demands that we rethink centuries of assumptions imposed on other places times and peoples so long as waste remains a category misunderstood to be common sensical and stable archaeological methods will prove unequal to their task Newman instead proposes anamorphic archaeology an approach that emphasizes the possibility that archaeological objects have multiple physical and conceptual lives The English Review Ford Madox Ford,1911 Words Dale D.
