The Journal of Civilization ,1851 New Zealand Moths and Butterflies G.V Hudson, 2020-07-25 Reproduction of the original New Zealand Moths and Butterflies by G V Hudson The CABI Encyclopedia of Forest Trees CABI, 2013 The CABI Encyclopedia of Forest Trees provides an extensive overview of 300 of the world's most important forest trees Tropical subtropical temperate and boreal trees of major economic importance are included covering tree species used in agroforestry practices around the world Many of the species covered are considered to be multipurpose trees with uses extending beyond timber alone the land uses such as watershed protection or provision of windbreaks and non wood uses such as the production of medicines resins food and forage are also listed Comprehensive information is presented on each tree s importance with a summary of the main characteristics of the species its potential for agroforestry use and any disadvantages it possesses The tree s botanical features such as habit stem form foliage inflorescence flower and fruit characters and phenology are covered in detail with over 70 color plate pictures to aid identification Also included are specific sections devoted to pests and diseases distribution and silvicultural characteristics and practices including seed sowing nursery care planting thinning and harvesting In addition to the wealth of information detailed based on datasheets from CABI s Forestry Compendium selected references for further reading are provided for each entry making this book an essential reference work for forestry students researchers and practitioners

The Drama of Conservation Carolyn M. King, D. John Gaukrodger, Neville A. Ritchie, 2015-11-07 This book offers a sweeping history of Pureora Forest Park one of the most significant sites of natural and cultural history interest in New Zealand The authors review the geological history of the volcanic zone its flora and fauna and the history of Maori and European utilization of forest resources Chapter length discussions cover management of the native forest by the New Zealand Forest Service the forest village and its sawmills the intensive timber harvesting and the conflicts with conservationists and expensive compensation agreements that ensued Separate chapters cover initiatives to protect the forest from introduced herbivores to guard protected species especially birds from predators the facilities for recreational hunting the development of the Timber Trail an 83 km cycleway through the forest and along old logging tramways complete with detailed interpretation signs illustrating the history of logging and the family recreation areas and tracks The final chapter gathers conclusions and advances prospects for the future of Pureora Forest In sum the book demonstrates how ecological study combined with a respect for people and for nature plus a flexible interdisciplinary approach to both local history and current scientific priorities can be welded into a consistently effective strategy for addressing the pressing forest ecology questions of our time

Journal of the Department of Agriculture ,1916 The Bradley Bibliography: Dendrology, pt.1 Alfred Rehder, 1911 Pamphlets on Forestry in Australia ,1919 New Zealand Books in Print ,1998 Domestication of Radiata Pine Rowland Burdon, William Libby, Alan Brown, 2017-12-12

In nature radiata pine is very localised and an obscure tree species despite the romantic character of much of its natural habitat That obscure status and the lack of any reputation as a virgin timber slowed its due recognition as a commercial crop Nevertheless it has become a major plantation forest crop internationally It has become the pre eminent commercial forest species in New Zealand Chile and Australia with important plantings in some other countries It consequently features prominently in the international trade in forest products in addition to its importance in domestic markets of grower countries Very fast growth considerable site tolerances ease of raising in nurseries and transplanting and ease of processing and using its wood for a range of products and purposes have made it the utility softwood of choice almost everywhere it can be grown satisfactorily Abundant genetic variation and its amenability to other management inputs created special opportunities for its domestication The story of its domestication forms a classic case history in the development of modern commercial forestry with trailblazing in both genetic improvement and plantation management this inevitably meant a learning process that provided instructive lessons especially for tree breeders dealing with some other species Paradoxically the plantation monocultures have played and can continue to play an important role in protecting natural forests and other forms of biodiversity Given the attractions of growing radiata pine there were inevitably cases of overreach in planting it with lessons to be learnt Economic globalisation has meant globalisation of pests and disease organisms and the scale on which radiata pine is grown has meant it has been the focus of various biotic alarms none of which have proved catastrophic Temptations remain however to pay less than due attention to some aspects of risk management The chapter structure of the book is based on historical periods beginning long before any important human influences and ending with a look into what the future might hold for the species and its role in human and ecological sustainability Almost throughout there has been complex interplay between the technical aspects local social and economic factors various types of institution the enthusiasm and drive of some very influential individuals and tides of economic ideology threads that needed to be woven together to do the story justice
