Food Contaminants C Creaser, R Purchase, 1991-10-01 This book contains contributions based on the proceedings of two symposia on food contamination held in London in April 1989 and May 1990 both of which were organised jointly by the Environment Food Chemistry and Toxicology Groups of the Royal Society of Chemistry The aim of these meetings was to assess the extraneous chemical contamination of food from two sources firstly food chain contaminants the presence of plant toxicants of fungal metabolites in food or the contamination of food from environmental sources airborne aquatic and terrestrial and secondly food production contaminants contaminants of man made origin brought about by a desire to facilitate food production and distribution The contributors concentrate on the contamination of food by chemicals arising from environmental and food production sources Chapter 1 is concerned with food chain contaminants present in food as natural components of the diet This is followed by discussion of the chlorinated dioxins and furans and polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons Following an introduction to the control and surveillance of food production contaminants four areas of activity are described migration from food contact materials with particular reference to plastics the analysis and regulatory control of veterinary products the analysis of pesticides in drinking water and finally the problem of food taints Biomarkers, 1996

Environmental Protection Agency, 1993 This is the first book devoted to postlabelling methods an important new analytical methodology Postlabelling methods have a wide range of applications these include studies of pathways of metabolic activation of chemical carcinogens studies of oxidative damage to DNA monitoring occupational exposure to carcinogens the association between DNA adducts and disease the possible role of DNA adducts in hormonal carcinogenesis and aging the study of complex environmental mixtures of carcinogens and monitoring the effects of such mixtures on various ecosystems Because of the high sensitivity of the postlabelling methods they can also be applied to humans who are exposed to low levels and many groups have concentrated their efforts towards the evaluation of adduct formation in relation to exposure and identification of cancer causing agents Aquatic and Surface Photochemistry George R. Helz, 2018-01-10 Aquatic and Surface Photochemistry provides a broad overview of current research in the emerging field of environmental aquatic and surface photochemistry Selected reviews and current research articles are blended to provide an in depth treatment of various aspects of this research area The first part of the text deals with photochemistry in the environment covering recent research on the following topics aquatic photochemistry of organic pollutants and agrochemicals photochemical cycling of carbon and transition metals especially iron photochemical formation of reactive oxygen species in natural waters photoreaction in cloud and rain droplets and photoreactions on environmental surfaces soil ash metal oxide The second part provides discussions and data on both heterogeneous photocatalytic and homogeneous processes with topics ranging from applications to mechanistic studies These chapters illustrate the wide diversity of pollutant classes that are degradable by photochemical techniques and the effects of various reaction conditions on the rates and efficiency of the techniques Current kinetic studies are presented which provide new information about the role of adsorption and the nature of the reactive oxidizing species that mediate these photoremediation processes This book will interest civil chemical and environmental engineers as well as chemists soil scientists geochemists and atmospheric
