Painted Illusions The Art Of Cornelius Gijsbrechts:

Painted Illusions Olaf Koester, Cornelius Gijsbrechts, National Gallery (Great Britain), 2000 The art of deception that Cornelius Gijsbrechts perfected at the court of Denmark around 1670 is one of the most dazzling feats of visual trickery in the history of European painting Although the artist himself is a mysterious figure his pictures not only delight with their illusions but also force viewers to consider the nature of the real world and the power of art Painted Illusions Olaf Koester, 2000-03-11 The Eye Deceived Olaf Koester, Cornelius Gijsbrechts, 2005 The Conference of the Tongues Theo Hermans, 2014-06-03 The Conference of the Tongues offers a series of startling reflections on fundamental questions of translation It throws new light on familiar problems and opens up some radically different avenues of thought It engages with value conflicts in translation and the social accountability of translators and turns the old issue of equivalence inside out Drawing on a wealth of contemporary and historical examples the book teases out the translator's subject position in translations makes notions of intertextuality and irony serviceable for translation studies tries to think translation without transformation and uses a controversial sociological model to cast a cold eye on the entire world of translating This is a highly interdisciplinary study that remains aware of the importance of theoretical paradigms as it brings concepts from international law social systems theory and even theology to bear on translation Self reference is a recurrent theme The book invites us to read translations for what they can tell us about translating and about translators own perceptions of their role The argument throughout is for more self reflexive translation studies Traces of Vermeer Jane Jelley, 2017-07-21 Johannes Vermeer's luminous paintings are loved and admired around the world yet we do not understand how they were made We see sunlit spaces the glimmer of satin silver and linen we see the softness of a hand on a lute string or letter We recognise the distilled impression of a moment of time and we feel it to be real We might hope for some answers from the experts but they are confounded too Even with the modern technology available they do not know why there is no evidence of any preliminary drawing why there are shifts in focus and why his pictures are unusually blurred Some wonder if he might possibly have used a camera obscura to capture what he saw before him The few traces Vermeer has left behind tell us little there are no letters or diaries and no reports of him at work Jane Jelley has taken a new path in this detective story A painter herself she has worked with the materials of his time the cochineal insect and lapis lazuli the sheep bones soot earth and rust She shows us how painters made their pictures layer by layer she investigates old secrets and hears travellers tales She explores how Vermeer could have used a lens in the creation of his masterpieces The clues were there all along After all this time now we can unlock the studio door and catch a glimpse of Vermeer inside painting light Editing the Image Mark Cheetham, Elizabeth Legge, Catherine M. Soussloff, 2008-11-29 The editing process is a vital part of virtually every form of media Primarily associated with texts and written language editing is equally essential if less examined in regard to visual media Editing the Image looks at the editing of visual media as both a series of technical exercises and as an allegory It touches on concerns that are crucial to the history of art and visual culture as well as those media and institutions that produce and disseminate the visual arts in our society Featuring contributors from a wide range of disciplines Editing the Image considers editing in the context of academic journals art historical texts illustrated books museum displays and exhibitions It is an inclusive analysis of visual forms commonly associated with the process of editing photography film and video as well as some that are not intrinsically linked to editing painting sculpture and architecture In addition to wide ranging academic considerations this collection includes discussions of moving picture media and studio art by practitioners giving the study a practical focus For anyone who has considered the implications of the editorial process this work will be of significant interest

Presence Robert Maniura, 2017-07-05 In about 25 BC tribesmen of the kingdom of Meroe placed a bronze head of Augustus cut from a full length statue beneath the steps of a temple of victory the decapitated head of the Emperor was thus regularly trampled underfoot Two millennia later during the second Gulf War Iraqis insulted a toppled bronze statue of Saddam Hussein by beating it with their shoes Do these chronologically distant but apparently related examples of the defamation of images imply that the persons represented were regarded by their detractors as in some way present in the images Presence The Inherence of the Prototype within Images and Other Objects reconsiders the notion of presence in objects The first book to address the issue directly it contains a series of case studies covering a broad geographical and chronological range from ancient Greece and the Incas to industrial America and contemporary India as well as examples from the canon of western European art The studies reveal the widespread evidence for this striking form of response and allow readers to see how presence is evoked and either embraced or repressed in differing historical and cultural contexts Featuring a variety of disciplines and approaches the book will be of interest to students of art history art theory visual culture anthropology psychology and philosophy

Fiction Without Humanity Lynn Festa,2019-06-28 Although the Enlightenment is often associated with the emergence of human rights and humanitarian sensibility humanity is an elusive category in the literary philosophical scientific and political writings of the period Fiction Without Humanity offers a literary history of late seventeenth and early eighteenth century efforts to define the human Focusing on the shifting terms in which human difference from animals things and machines was expressed Lynn Festa argues that writers and artists treated humanity as an indefinite class which needed to be called into being through literature and the arts Drawing on an array of literary scientific artistic and philosophical devices the riddle the fable the microscope the novel and trompe l oeil and still life painting Fiction Without Humanity focuses on experiments with the perspectives of nonhuman creatures and inanimate things Rather than deriving species membership from sympathetic identification or likeness to a fixed template early Enlightenment writers and artists grounded humanity in the enactment of capacities reason speech educability that distinguish humans from other creatures generating a performative model of humanity capacious enough to accommodate broader claims to human rights In addressing genres typically excluded from canonical literary histories Fiction Without Humanity offers an alternative account of the rise of the novel showing how these early experiments with nonhuman perspectives helped generate novelistic techniques for the representation of consciousness By placing the novel in a genealogy that embraces paintings riddles scientific plates and fables Festa shows realism to issue less from mimetic exactitude than from the tailoring of the represented world to a distinctively human point of view
