Enduring and responding to intense physical therapy treatments she overcame the paralysis in her limbs and was released after two months. By the 1980s and 1990s Richardson had established an enviable career with work in galleries and collections across the Southeast. Fifty-six years after recovering from paralysis she succumbed to the muscle-weakening effects of post-polio syndrome (PPS). In 2002, approximately 25 to 40 percent of polio survivors are affected by PPS, and there is no treatment. She lost muscle strength and control in her legs, torso, and arms. This loss limited walking, increased scoliosis, and in her right arm, severely challenged Richardson's ability to paint. Painting Light in Polio's Shadow: One Artist's Struggles reveals how she coped with PPS setbacks and challenges and how these impediments forced her to make radical changes in her private and professional life. She was determined to do everything necessary to continue painting, which included learning to paint with her nondominant left hand.
