The G20 in nutshell

The G20, or Group of 20, is an international forum comprising the world's major developed and developing economies. It represents approximately 85 percent of the global Gross Domestic Product (GDP), over 75 percent of worldwide trade, and encompasses about two-thirds of the global population. The G20 holds annual Summits, hosted by a rotating member country. Before these Summits, meetings on various topics such as trade, health, and tourism are conducted in that host country in the preceding months.

The culmination of the G20, which took place over two days in New Delhi, India, marks a significant moment in global economic discourse. This international assembly brings together the foremost economies of the world, providing a platform for deliberations on the most pressing challenges confronting the global economic landscape. For India, hosting this summit in 2023 is not only an occasion to display its economic and political influence on the global stage but also an opportunity to engage in substantive discussions with fellow G20 nations on critical issues ranging from climate change to sustainable development and global health.

The G20, formally known as the Group of Twenty, emerged in 1999 in the aftermath of the Asian financial crisis, coalescing around vital concerns including international financial stability, climate action, and sustainable progress. Comprising 19 nations and the European Union, this intergovernmental forum commands a staggering 80 trillion dollars of the global Gross Domestic Product (GDP), accounts for 75 trillion dollars in international trade, encompasses two-thirds of the world's population, and occupies 60 million square miles of the Earth's landmass. This commanding presence solidifies the G20's standing as a preeminent forum for international collaboration in economic and financial spheres.

The G20 membership encompasses nations such as Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Republic of Korea, Mexico, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, Turkey, the United Kingdom, and the United States, in addition to the European Union. Beyond this core roster, the conference has to leaders from non-member states and a diverse array of international organizations. With Narendra Modi's inclusive approach, the African Union has been welcomed into this fold, signifying India's intent to broaden the forum's reach. Moreover, in collaboration with Germany, India is

Pathologic Findings in Stranded Marine Mammals: A Global Perspective Gregory Dana Bossart, Alvin Cyril Camus, Debra Lee Miller, Stephen Raverty, 2022-02-09 This project is posthumously dedicated to Dr Gregory Dana Bossart Whether you knew him as colleague mentor friend family member or simply knew of him you could not help but be awestruck by his dedication intelligence thoughtfulness work ethic and passion for scientific inquiry especially for conservation of the marine environment Many of his publications were seminal in marine mammal health including infectious environmental and zoonotic diseases As we collected manuscripts for this special Frontiers edition it was heartwarming to hear the comments from contributors So many research scientists field biologists and veterinarians could easily have given up and said I just can't do this now especially with the added challenges posed by the current COVID 19 pandemic Instead contributors from around the world were determined to contribute to this collection because of their inspiration and shared commitment with Greg's vision The love and admiration within the marine community for Greg is phenomenal With that said we would be remiss if we did not say a few words about Greg as a mentor and friend Greg had a knack for helping students realize their abilities and pursue their own independent contributions to the marine mammal community He shared in their successes and worked tirelessly to facilitate their aspirations Greg would involve students early career scientists and colleagues in projects introduce them to collaborators and promote them and their work Greg was a genuinely caring person When he asked you how are you doing he honestly wanted to know He was always there ready to listen and provide guidance If you were to ask Greg what was most important to him in life he would say God family and marine life and one could argue that he had a special fondness for manatees He believed in the beauty of nature and that God had a hand in all of it He was in pursuit of ensuring that we all share this earth responsibly and sustainably We miss Greg dearly but honor and celebrate him as we carry on in our pursuits A Global Perspective on Vaccines: Priorities, Challenges and Online Information Luciana
