Making Sense of Learning Norman Reid, Asma Amanat Ali, 2020-08-26 This textbook brings together findings from global research on teaching and learning with an emphasis on secondary and higher education The book is unique in that the content is selected in an original way and its presentation reflects the most recent research evidence related to understanding The book covers and presents themes that are based tightly on worldwide research evidence scrupulously avoiding opinion or any dependence on the personal experience of the authors The book starts by reflecting on educational research itself The four chapters that follow relate the story of the research that shows how all humans learn and the variations within that framework These chapters offer a tight framework that underpins much of the rest of the text The next four chapters look at the way school curricula are organised and how the performance of learners can be assessed They summarise the research evidence related to thinking skills and consider the importance of practical teaching This is followed by two chapters that draw from the extensive social psychology research on attitude development as it applies in education and then by two chapters that summarise the research related to major issues of controversy the performativity agenda and the issue of quality One chapter looks at the place of statistics in education The next two chapters look at the evidence that can support or undermine many typical education beliefs or myths and mirages Finally the last chapter brings it all together and looks into the future pointing to some areas where future research is likely to be helpful based on current knowledge

The Senses of Scripture Yael Avrahami, 2012-06-15 The Senses of Scripture reveals the essence of biblical epistemology the ways in which ancient Israelites thought about and used their sensorium The theoretical introduction demonstrates that scholars need to liberate themselves from the Western bias that holds a pentasensory paradigm and prioritises the sense of sight The discussion of the biblical material demonstrates that biblical scholars should follow a similar path Through examination of associative and contextual patterns the author reaches a septasensory model including sight hearing speech kinaesthesia touch taste and smell It is further demonstrated that the senses according to the HB are a divinely created physical experience which symbolised human ability to act in a sovereign manner in the world Despite the lack of a biblical Hebrew term sense it seems that at times the merism sight and hearing serves that matter Finally the book discusses the longstanding dispute regarding the primacy of sight vs hearing and claims that although there is no strict sensory hierarchy evident in the text sight holds a central space in biblical epistemology
