Food, Text and Culture in the Anglophone Caribbean Sarah Lawson Welsh, 2019-07-02 How do diasporic writers negotiate their identities through and with food What tensions emerge between the local and the global between the foodways of the past and of the present How are concepts of culinary tradition and authenticity articulated in Caribbean cookery writing Drawing on a rich and varied tradition of Caribbean writings Food Text Culture in the Anglophone Caribbean shows how the creation of food and the creation of narrative are intimately linked cultural practices which can tell us much about each other Historically Caribbean writers have explored defined and re affirmed their different cultural ethnic caste class and gender identities by writing about what when and how they eat Images of feeding feasting fasting and other food rituals and practices as articulated in a range of Caribbean writings constitute a powerful force of social cohesion and cultural continuity Moreover food is often central to the question of what it means to be Caribbean especially in diasporic and globalized contexts Suitable for undergraduates postgraduates and scholars the book offers the first study of food and writing in an Anglophone Caribbean context

Making Modern Meals Amy B. Trubek, 2017 Home cooking is crucial to our lives but it is not necessary to our survival Over the past century it has become an everyday choice even though it is no longer an everyday chore By looking closely at the stories and practices of American home cooks witnessing them in the kitchen and at the table Amy B Trubek reveals our episodic but also engaged relationship to making meals Making Modern Meals explores the state of American cooking across all its varied practices whether cooking is considered a chore a craft or a creative process Trubek challenges current assumptions about who cooks who doesn t cook and what this means for culture cuisine and health Contending that cooking has changed in the past century she locates identifies and discusses the myriad ways Americans cook in the modern age In doing so she argues that changes in making our meals from shopping to cooking to dining have created new cooks new cooking categories and new culinary challenges Provided by publisher

Food, Masculinities, and Home Michelle Szabo, Shelley Koch, 2017-05-18 Long held associations between women home food and cooking are beginning to unravel as in a growing number of households men are taking on food and cooking responsibilities At the same time men s public foodwork continues to gain attention in the media and popular culture The first of its kind Food Masculinities and Home focuses specifically on food in relation to how homemaking practices shape masculine identities and transform meanings of home The international multidisciplinary contributors explore questions including how food practices shape masculinity and notions of home and vice versa the extent to which this gender shift challenges existing gender hierarchies and how masculinities are being reshaped by the growing presence of men in kitchens and food focused spaces With ever growing interest in both food and gender studies this is a must read for students and researchers in food studies gender studies cultural studies sociology geography anthropology and related fields Catalog
